The King in Danger.
Wild Wall Street.
Old, Dead, Rich.
America's Big Five.

BAD news about King George. The doctors' latest bulletin brings deepest anxiety. They do not dare attempt an operation that was contemplated, because of the King's weakness.

Insurance companies charging 90 per cent to insure the King's life for a few weeks evidently had information more exact than that given to the public by the doctors.

It doesn't do the "sold out" gambler any good, but ancient ones say "the market has behaved well under the circumstances."

With a million ignoramuses buying without knowing why, and selling in panic, it is a marvel that conditions were not worse. But the flurry is not ended.

ATLANTIC CITY police found a dead man, very old, and near his body $100,000 of hoarded money, small bags filled with gold, crumpled, faded bank notes.

ASK some poor old man not yet dead, depending on cold charity or on relatives that are indifferent. He will tell you what comfort the old man of Atlantic City found in the possession of $100,000. The money made him independent, a FREE MAN. Poverty is slavery. Save something.

WILL ROGERS selects an "all-American team" of ability, as follows:

Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford, Herbert Hoover, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Lindbergh.

He probably leaves out the ablest man in the country, as yet unknown. That's fortunate, for it means we have reserves.

ROGERS would have those five men run the country, "move Thanksgiving Day up to election and do away with elections entirely."

The plan would work, of course. The original John D. Rockefeller could have done the job alone when he was younger. He would have known how to select the men.

But the people must plan to govern themselves as babies must learn to walk, no matter how badly they do it at first. If you always hired a man to push your baby around in a wagon, the baby wouldn't develop.

THOMAS MORAN, known to the police as "Red," killed two policemen. He felt that he had to live, crime was the path he chose. He killed two trying to remain alive.

SENTENCED to the electric chair, "Red" will be killed in his turn, day after tomorrow. Keepers are watching him closely to thwart his attempts to kill himself.

First he killed that he might live. Now he tries to kill himself that the electric chair may not get him. Strange animals are human beings, from the gangman and his retail murders to the giant killer Napoleon, who always carried poison with him.

PHILIP CHALLENGER, from Santa Barbara and Chicago, recently working as a Chicago reporter for $18 a week, now is planning to spend $1,000 a day. His grandfather left him $6,000,000. Wiser than many, the young man decides to study archeology, and invites a scientist to accompany him on travels around the world. Of course he decides to kill big game. When in doubt, prosperous human beings, male and female, always seem to "kill big game."

IF YOU heard that a young lion, inheriting money, immediately decided to kill big men, you would say, "queer lion."

However, it is a providential atavistic impulse, dating far back. The right kind of man wanted to kill big animals because big animals menaced the existence of the human race a million years ago. They don't any more. Small microbes menace us now.

HURLS MAN THROUGH DOOR

Caught in a rain of debris from a blast which wrecked the confectionery of Abe Laikoff, 8326 Frankstown avenue, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, five Crescent School pupils are nursing cuts and bruises.

A group of children en route to school were in front of the store when the explosion occurred.

Laikoff was hurled through the door and is in a serious condition in Columbia Hospital. Patsy Bernello, 9, of Frankstown road, is in the same hospital with cuts and bruises. Byrd McGinnis, 7, of 8209 Bricelyn street, cut and bruised on the face, is in Pittsburgh Hospital.

3 OTHERS HURT.

William Thomas, 7, of 8300 Frankstown avenue, and Joseph Peccola, 6, of Frankstown road, were cut on the face and hands. The last three were treated at their homes. Several others were slightly cut.

The explosion, said to have been caused by gas, occurred in the basement of the building, a two-story brick structure. Fire followed, and caused damage estimated by Battalion Chief F. S. Beckett at $4,000, equally divided on stock and building.

The report of the explosion was heard throughout the district and parents rushed to the Crescent School to learn the fate of their children. The school and store are in the same block.

Missing Girl Student And Mother Reunited

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 1. —(AP.)—Miss Sarah Elizabeth Judy, 19, West Virginia University student, who disappeared from Morgantown last Thursday, was reunited with her mother, Mrs. William J. Judy, Parkersburg, at the home of the Rev. Gregory Bleakley at Warwood, a suburb, last night.

The girl said she tired of school routine and came to Wheeling in quest of work. Unable to find employment she became penniless and appealed to the Rev. Bleakley and his wife for shelter. For two days she refused to divulge her identity but finally asked that her parents be notified. The girl and her mother will return to Parkersburg tomorrow.

Awakened early this morning by carbon monoxide fumes, Francis Mercuri, 4, 206 Hays street, Hays borough, cried out and awakened his father in time for him to throw open a window and call for help for Francis' stricken brothers, Joseph, 7, and James, 8, and his mother, who is in serious condition.

CRY OF CHOKING CHILD SAVES FAMILY OF 5

The choking cry of a four-year-old boy saved the lives of a family of five as deadly carbon monoxide fumes from an open gas stove seeped through a small two-room dwelling in Hays borough today. Three of the family were overcome, and one of them—the mother—was in a serious condition.

Francis Mercuri, 5, wakened his father, E. A. Mercuri, of 206 Hays street, Hays Borough, in the early morning hours with gasping cries. The father stirred to find the bedroom, in which the entire family slept, reeking with fumes.

He threw open a window and called for aid. Dr. W. A. Jones, of Hays, was summoned and treated the father and mother and three sons, Francis, James, 8, and Joseph, 7.

He said James, Joseph and Mrs. Mercuri had been seriously affected.

Only the fact that the youngest child awakened in time saved all five from death, the physician said.

Plane Siren Turns on St. Louis' New Lights

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—On a second exchange of signals, the shrill call of a siren on a plane more than 1,000 feet overhead turned on St. Louis' $2,236,000 downtown lighting system last night, while thousands of spectators looked on. The siren note was transmitted to a power sub-station controlling the light standards.

Engineers say the St. Louis installation is not equalled in any other city for brilliance.

WIDOW FREED IN OHIO DEATH MYSTERY

By WILLIAM PFARR,
Staff Correspondent.

CANTON, O., Dec. 11.—A 22-year-old widow who once lived in Pittsburgh and later in Beaver Falls, convinced Sheriff Edward Gibson today that she had not played the principal role in the slaying of Vernard E. Fearn, and with that the sheriff's most promising tip to the slayer collapsed.

The woman, Mrs. Dorothy Sandels, was routed out of bed at 2 o'clock this morning to be questioned by County Prosecutor Henry Harter. She told a straightforward story, Harter said, and was not identified as the woman seen near Fearn's home on several occasions before he was called to the door of his home and shot to death by a girl who mysteriously vanished.

FLU PERIL FOUGHT IN SCHOOLS

Medical forces of the city were being marshaled today to prevent the spread—particularly in schools—of the influenza epidemic reported to be sweeping over the country from the West coast.

Presence of some influenza already has been felt in the schools, Supt. of Schools William M. Davidson said. He has not yet asked for reports on the number of cases and does not feel alarmed, he added.

DIRECTORS TO CONFER

At behest of Supt. Davidson, medical directors of the city and of the schools will meet tomorrow to frame preventive measures.

Dr. Philip E. Marks, superintendent of the city health department, said he would confer tomorrow with Dr. Davidson, Dr. H. J. Benz, director of the child welfare bureau, and Dr. Harry B. Burns, chief school physician.

Meanwhile, at Carnegie Institute of Technology all students suffering from common colds were being isolated to prevent contagion from what might be incipient influenza. Dr. William E. Marks, the school's resident physician, said no cases of flu had been identified there yet, but that extra precautions were being taken. At the University of Pittsburgh a similar watchfulness was in vogue.

NO OFFICIAL WARNING YET

Dr. Phillip Marks said he had decided not to issue an official warning to citizens until he was certain the danger was real. He was skeptical of the value of cautioning people to remain away from public assemblies, and pointed to the ill-effects such a warning might have on holiday trade. He expected to formulate a program after the conference tomorrow.

Dr. T. C. Conover, Allegheny County medical director, said there was not an unusual number of influenza cases in the county as yet, but he anticipated the necessity for precaution. His message of warning was this:

"It would be wise also for persons addicted to making 'whoopee,' as they call it, over the holidays to refrain this year. If an epidemic comes they will be the first ones to feel it."

Miss Bryan beat out the flames with her hands, calmed the woman and summoned police, who said her clothing had been ignited at a coal grate.

Tax Refunds Would Wipe Out Surplus

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(Ins.)—President Coolidge sent to Congress today supplemental estimates for tax refunds which will wipe out almost in its entirety the $37,000,000 surplus which had been counted on to be in the treasury next June 30. The estimate was $35,000,000 in excess of the figure originally anticipated by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Director of the Budget Lord.

JOBS VANISH IN $470,000 CITY BUDGET CUT

Council today slashed $470,000, including pay for many new jobs asked by department heads, from the 1929 budget estimates totaling $25,844,000.

Jobs eliminated represent about 60 new requests for specific positions and an indeterminate number of present employes now paid from bond funds who were to be transferred to payrolls financed by tax revenue.

Elimination of the bond fund employes was termed a move to force a "show-down" in the Department of Public Works and probably will result in a complete reorganization of that activity.

It was said that the department force has been greatly increased to supervise the many projects authorized in past bond issues. A considerable part of the bond issue work is completed and the department sought to have the employes engaged thereon placed on the appropriation payrolls.

Council passed a motion calling the attention of Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, to the elimination of jobs and requesting him to submit within a week any comment he has to offer.

$310,363 PAY BOOSTS

All the cuts were based on requested reports submitted by H. S. Breitenstein, controller's statistician.

One report showed new positions requested for next year called for payrolls of $310,363. They appear in estimates of the general office of the Department of Public Works, Bureau of Tests, Bureau of Recreation and Bureau of Traffic Planning.

In a second report Breitenstein recommended cutting $160,000 from a number of items after presenting their actual or estimated costs for 1928 in comparison with requests for 1929.

Council decided to eliminate the totals of both requests on motion of President James F. Malone.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Reports to the Federal Radio Commission today indicated more than 100 broadcasting stations are off their frequencies or otherwise violating the law. ROYAL HEIR NEARING SINKING RULER

BULLETIN.

BOULOGNE, France, Dec. 11, (AP.)—The Prince of Wales, speeding to the bedside of King George, arrived at Boulogne at 6:45 o'clock this evening. He immediately prepared to cross the English channel to Dover. He is due in London at 10:30 tonight, fully 12 hours in advance of the best time previously estimated.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—All Britain today watched with breathless interest the race of the Prince of Wales to reach the bedside of his stricken father.

While hopes for the royal patient in Buckingham Palace were fading, his eldest son, summoned from the wilds of tropical Africa, was speeding faster and faster towards his homeland as word from the royal residence conveyed fear of the outcome of the long struggle for life which King George has been making.

This afternoon Stanley Baldwin, prime minister, hurriedly left the House of Commons for Dover, where he will meet the Prince. The premier departed after making a brief speech.

Shortly before 4 p. m. it was stated in semi-official quarters that there had been no change in the condition of the King since this morning.

Meanwhile the King's physicians were waging a fight against death. Unofficially it was said that His Majesty's chances of recovery were slight.

That the King's powers of resistance have been ebbing for days under the strain of a lung infection which spread to his general system, has been evident from the physicians' recent reports.

ANXIETY UNALLAYED

Although the doctors were able to say in today's bulletin that there was no further impairment of King George's strength, it was stated authoritatively that the bulletin was not regarded in Buckingham Palace circles as satisfactory. The anxiety which prevailed among members of the royal household throughout yesterday remained unallayed.

The bulletin, signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson, of Penn, said:

"His Majesty, the King, has had several hours' sleep. The temperature remains high, but there is no further impairment of the strength."

Whether the sleep referred to was natural sleep or induced by sedatives was not stated.

The official bulletin, which was brief and still noncommittal, conveyed little to the general public and certainly gave no ground for belief that there was any change for the better in the King's condition.

It was evident that the persistent fever which has wracked King George's body for more than three

VANDERBILT TELLS COURT MILLIONS SHRUNK TO $10

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11.—From "millions to less than $10," is the life story of young Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., scion of one of New York's most famous and wealthy families.

In court here yesterday to explain why he had not paid a two-year-old $11,000 judgment obtained by Edward J. Ralph, Vanderbilt said his only income was from the sale of his writings.

"I've less than $10 and haven't even got an automobile," he testified.

Ralph had obtained the judgment against Vanderbilt on a charge that the latter had libeled him in an article published in a magazine of national circulation. The examination before the court today was to determine Vanderbilt's assets, if any, and no further action was taken by the court. Vanderbilt denied that he was receiving any money from his family.

The Kresges are to spend several days in Sebring, and then depart for California, where they plan to spend the winter.

weeks and has been sapping his strength day by day still held a firm grip upon him.

During the night, palace officials were stated in a semi-official announcement to be disquieted by the condition of the King. The evening bulletin last night read:

"His majesty had a quiet day. The signs in the lung have improved. The fever persists although it is not so high as last evening and is due to some return of the general infection which necessarily affects the condition of the heart."

POISON SPREADS

At the end of last week the physicians were able to report that the infection which had spread throughout the system of the King had been localized and that he was therefore in a safer position. That situation had been reversed today. The spread of poison from the infected lung to other parts of the system, must have an effect on the heart and accordingly anxiety was felt.

The Prince of Wales left Brindisi, Italy, at 12:30 p. m. yesterday after taking just seven minutes to transfer from the British cruiser Enterprise to a special train placed at his disposal by Crown Prince Humbert of Italy.

At Lugano, Switzerland, the Prince lost four minutes when the train was halted for repairs on a hot box, but as the engineer pulled out of Lugano station he was determined to make up the lost time.

DESTROYER GOES

The special train passed through Belfort across the border in France at 10:43 o'clock this morning, stopping 12 minutes before speeding on to Boulogne where the British destroyer Torch will meet him to make the last 95-minute dash across the channel to England.

The Torch left Dover shortly after noon today to be ready to convey the Prince across the channel. A cold southeast wind was blowing and the channel was hazy.

The special stopped at Rheims a few minutes and the Prince, as he had done at Belfast, availed himself of the opportunity to get a bit of exercise on the station platform. He appeared drawn and nervous.

Reaching the Northern Railroad exactly on time, the train sped over a clear line and was given the right of way over all other traffic to make Bologne as speedily as possible as news reached Paris that Premier Baldwin had hurriedly left the House of Commons to board a train for Dover.

REACHES BELFORT

BELFORT, France, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Prince of Wales, speeding to the bedside of King George, arrived at Belfort at 10:43 o'clock this morning and 12 minutes later left for Boulogne, where he was expected this evening.

While his special train stopped, the Prince walked up and down the platform for a few minutes and received the salutes of Prefect Leon and several other officials.

U. S. PUSHES DRUG RING INQUIRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—The shot which dropped Arnold Rothstein November 4 in the Park Central Hotel eventually may echo around the world.

Investigation of the narcotic syndicate which Rothstein is believed to have financed—at 180 per cent interest—today brought a charge by Congressman Stephen G. Porter that narcotic manufacturers in six countries in Europe were not keeping the agreement of The Hague opium convention of 1912.

This agreement provided that the manufacture of narcotics would be limited for medical purposes only.

PORTER IN NEW YORK

Representative Porter, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, came here with Col. L. C. Nutt, head of the National Narcotic Bureau, to inquire at first hand into the slain gambler's connections with the smuggling of narcotics.

He asserted the United States had complied with the agreement and that if European manufacturers would do likewise smuggling would cease.

SEEK UNGER'S RETURN

Joseph Unger, alias Meyer, alias Klein, is under indictment here for possession, concealment and transportation of $2,000,000 worth of narcotics. Federal agents went to Buffalo, where he is held under $1,000,000 bond, to seek his return to New York.

Mrs. June Boyd, in whose apartment in Chicago, $500,000 worth of narcotics was found testified before the Federal grand jury which indicted Unger. She was named in the indictment as a conspirator but not as a defendant.

NEW CLUE EXPLODES

A new link in the Rothstein murder investigation forged by Atlantic City detectives apparently had snapped today when New York police were informed that disclosures made to them by a self-styled gambler were no more than the day dreams of an alcoholic mind.

The Jersey detectives arrested Leo Maloney last night and on the basis of what he told them believed that they had found the missing link of the Rothstein murder case.

Maloney was quoted as saying that he had been with Rothstein, a close friend, when Rothstein was summoned to the hotel where he was shot. He said he walked with him to the door of the hotel and saw George McManus, who has been indicted for murder, meet him there. He added that Rothstein had previously remarked that McManus was planning to "get" him.

This was last night. Today police announced that on sobering up Maloney could remember nothing of his "disclosures," and said that he had never even seen Rothstein or McManus.

RUM WITNESSES CANCEL PLEAS

Two government star witnesses in the North Side rum conspiracy trial were permitted to withdraw their pleas of no defense by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today.

They are Arnold Thornburg and Eugene Cappi. Their counsel, Attorney H. M. Montgomery, asking withdrawal of the pleas, reasoned that a court-directed verdict of not guilty was entered November 28 as to the other defendants.

Other similar motions are expected in behalf of about a dozen defendants who entered pleas of no defense or guilty before the trial.

While United States Attorney John D. Meyer has not disclosed his plans, reports persist at the Federal Building that the January federal grand jury will be asked to reindict most of the North Side defendants in the liquor conspiracy case.

WALL STREET BONUS TO BE $75,000,000

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Christmas bonuses to Wall Street employes are expected to smash all records this Yuletide, regardless of whether the stock market rises or falls. It was conservatively estimated today that the total distribution will be close to $75,000,000, which is about $25,000,000 more than was passed around last year.

There is a golden glow over Wall Street that even a series of "bear" markets cannot disssipate, and the hard-worked employes of the brokerage houses, banks and other financial institutions will receive bonuses ranging from 10 to 100 per cent of their year's salary. These employes have been working day and night and now comes their reward.

TRANSACTIONS HEAVY

Transactons on the stock exchange this year are expected to total more than 900,000,000 shares, against about 600,000,000 shares for 1927, and the volume of trading on the Curb and over-the-counter markets has been correspondingly heavy.

The ups and downs of the market itself will not cut in on the commissions of the brokerage houses. If there are to be losses between now and Christmas in the market the speculative investing American public is most likely to take the blows.

GOLD DISTRIBUTION

The Federal Reserve Bank in this district is about to begin the annual distribution to member banks of Christmas gold coins. The total is unofficially placed at between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

Business has been so heavy in Wall Street that the New York Telephone Company has been forced to take steps to increase its facilities, it was stated today. There are eight exchanges, each handling 10,500 lines, serving the financial district but, with the tremendous increase in trading in stocks, these are not enough.

declared she was not the women. Harter, convinced that she had played no part in the killing, released her.

Sheriff Gibson announced he had uncovered another lead which, he said, "still looks good." Whether this had developed from the quizzing, last night, of four girl acquaintances of Fearn, Gibson would not reveal.

WIDOW WANTS TRUTH

Again yesterday the murdered man's widow and 9-year-old child repeated the story of the killing for the authorities. Mrs. Fearn's story was unchanged: a well-dressed brunette had knocked on the front door at 6:30 p. m. Thursday, asked Mrs. Fearn for her husband, and when Fearn arrived, coolly drilled him with a .32 automatic.

Heretofore Mrs. Fearn has insisted her husband was a model husband. Yesterday she said, "I want to see this mystery cleared up, even though it may mean unhappiness for me and my little girl."

MISSIONARY MERGER WAR HEADS FOR COURT

Seeking to prevent a merger of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Protestant Church and the church Board of Foreign Missions, officials of the women's organization are planning to go into court.

Mrs. Lydia K. East, of Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, national treasurer of the woman's groups, states that in such a merger approximately $200,000 of their funds must be turned over to the church board.

Last spring at a conference in Baltimore, church officials voted, after the women's organization refused to merge, to override the charter of the woman's society and appoint a board to take over activities of the society.

Collections totaling more than $60,000 annually are received by the society and the women seek to direct their own distribution of funds.

Bed Surest Cure For Flu—Must Be Taken Early

Washington, Dec. 11.—Surgeon General Cumming of the Public Health Service today declared the surest single means of preventing serious cases of influenza is to "go to bed the moment colds and feverishness develops." He made a plea for this on the scores of both protection of the individual from pneumonia and other complications and protection of communities from spread of the epidemic.

SCHOOLS GUARD AGAINST FLU

Public Health Service, advised closing city schools to prevent spread of influenza toady, as 21,238 new cases were reported by health officers in 26 states. Estimating that not more than one-fifth of the cases are being reported, he said there are probably 200,000 cases of the disease in the country.

"Although the weight of scientific opinion seems to be in favor of closing schools and other public places," Surg. Gen. Cumming said, "and although this has proved efficacious in rural districts, there is little evidence that it is of value in cities. Close contacts in the cities are unavoidable whether the individual is in schools or not, and we believe it is better for the children to be in school under supervision."

Following are the number of cases in 26 states for this week ending December 8:

Kansas, 13,596; Montana, 4,580; Colorado, 1,936; North Dakota, 194; Wisconsin, 107; New Mexico, 170; Arizona, 100; Maine, 12 Connecticut, 4; New York City, 36; New Jersey, 22; Illinois, 97; Michigan, 6; Maryland, 10; West Virginia 57; Florida, 17; Arkansas 95; Louisiana, 36; Texas, 38; Idaho, 7; Utah, 96 and Washington, 22.

EFFORT TO GRAB GIRL FAILS

Shortly after his arrest for an alleged attempt to abduct a girl from a doctor's office, William McGraw, 19, of 232 Romeo street, slashed his wrists in a suicide attempt, police say, in a cell of the Hazelwood Police Station last night.

McGraw, police allege, went to the office of Dr. R. L. Irwin, at 5327 Second avenue, and there invited Miss Lois Maister, 17, of 39 Alameda street, for an automobile ride. When she refused, McGraw drew a revolver and threatened her, according to police. The girl screamed and Dr. Irwin ran to her aid. McGraw fled, only to be arrested a short time later in Second avenue. Police were unable to find a revolver.

Charged with being a suspicious person, the youth was lodged in a cell. An hour later Sergt. Thomas Lyons discovered the prisoner had cut his wrists with a key, sharpened on the concrete floor.

McGraw was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital where he told police and hospital attaches that he also had swallowed poison. He is being kept at the hospital under police guard and upon his release will be arraigned in Morals Court.

NORTHCOTT CALMLY PLANS OWN DEFENSE

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Dec. 11.—While hundreds jammed the courtroom to see the confessed arch fiend murderer of nine boys, George Stewart Northcott stood undismayed and belligrent before the court to enter a plea of "not guilty."

Disregarding his own attorney, Northcott personally read the indictment which charged him with a series of murders on his parents' chicken ranch. Even though he was surrounded by officers to whom he had pointed out the graves of many of his child victims, he entered a plea of denial.

While his father has promised to "tell all," young Northcott steadfastly refuses to disclose anything which would incriminate his mother, arrested in Canada and returned to California after extradition proceedings were instituted.

SENATE FORCES COMPROMISE ON DAM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The Senate reached the voting stage on the long-fought Boulder Dam bill today and put through the first of a host of waiting amendments, forcing a compromise between California and Arizona as to California's share of water from the Colorado River.

By a vote of 48 to 29 the Senate fixed California's share at 4,400,000-acre feet after Senator Johnson, Republican, California, and Senators Hayden and Ashurst, Arizona Democrats, voluntarily accepted that figure and then rejected it. Johnson expressed willingness to accept 4,400,000 feet, although he had sought 4,600,000, but withdrew his acceptance when the Arizona Senators declined to promise that they would attempt no further revisions of the measure.

Johnson himself voted against the compromise suggested by Senator Bratton (Dem.), New Mexico, and urged the Senate to defeat it. The Arizonans had asserted that California was entitled to no more than 4,200,000 feet of water and were ready to accept the compromise figurt, but when Johnson sought an agreement that no other changes in the bill be attempted, they declared they would fight to the last.

FILIBUSTER THREAT

After having publicly accepted the Bratton compromise, Senator Johnson called upon the Senate to defeat it when Senator Ashurst announced that his state would resort to the "rocky passes of the Senate rules if necessary" to protect Arizona's rights in the bill.

This apparent threat of another filibuster aroused the Californian and he turned to his colleagues and retracted his acceptance of the Bratton water allocation amendment, which he had termed a compromise.

His plea for its defeat proved futile, 13 Republicans joining an almost solid Democratic lineup in support of the Bratton proposal. Only three Democrats and the lone farmer-Labor member voted with the 25 Republicans who followed Senator Johnson.

CELTIC STILL STRANDED

COBH, Ireland, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The White Star Liner Celtic, which went aground at the entrance of Cork Harbor yesterday still was fast on the rocks this afternoon. Moderating weather and calm seas, however, considerably lessened the danger of her breaking up.

White Star engineers arrived at Cobh today and boarded the vessel for an investigation upon which will depend attempts to salvage her. It was believed that the structural work amidships had been strained.

The Celtic was carried on the rocks off Roches Point Lighthouse by a 70-mile gale yesterday. So violent was the storm that the pilot was not able to get aboard and the captain tried to make his anchorage during a lull in the storm. The liner was almost in safe waters when a violent gust swung her upon the rocks with a crash which shook the ship.

Fairchance Man Taken Off Celtic

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 11.—Mentioned in press dispatches as one of the Western Pennsylvanians on board the Celtic when it went on the rocks just off the Irish coast, M. C. Cooke, of Fairchance, was on his way to Liverpool, England, to Mr. Cooke is superintendent of the Dupont Powder plant.

'INSULTED,' BOLIVIA QUITS PAN-AMERICAN PARLEY

VISIT HAILED AS AID TO TRADE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The traditional friendship between the United States and Chile, which has existed since the foundation of the republics, was exemplified anew today in entertainment provided for President-elect Hoover. The festivities celebrating this good will visit included a luncheon at the presidential palace arranged by President Ibanez for Mr. Hoover. Members of the Chilean cabinet and immediate members of the Hoover party were invited to it.

While Mr. Hoover was being entertained and conferring with Chilean officials, American business men in this country today expressed the view that the visit of Mr. Hoover, while devoted entirely to the promotion of good will, would prove to be of infinite benefit to the commercial relations between the two countries.

SEEN AS TRADE AID

One American said that more than $600,000,000 of American capital was already invested in Chile and that Chileans, realizing the extent to which Mr. Hoover had promoted the relations between the two countries, would welcome a further influx of American money for the development of natural resources. Regret was expressed that it was necessary for Mr. Hoover to limit his visit to two days and officials and others mapped out a crowded program for the final day of his stay.

Members of the Chilean cabinet were invited to call at the American embassy for a reception to Mr. Hoover. More than 600 Chileans and Americans have already been received there. Before leaving late today for Los Andes to spend the night before entraining tomorrow for his trip across the Andes, Mr. Hoover was to receive an honorary membership in the School of Engineers of the University of Chile.

Mr. Hoover was unusually honored on his arrival when President Ibanez went to the railroad station to meet him. This was understood to be only the second instance in which a president of Chile has so acted, the previous occasion being a visit to the president of Bolivia.

Cigaret Blamed For Chicago Fire

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Celluloid toilet articles, catching fire from a cigaret, caused a fire in a 24-story apartment house on Lake Shore drive last night.

Although the smoke routed many tenants from the building, the loss was confined to the Jennings apartment, where the fire started.

N. Y. BOYS SEE LINDY LAND IN RIVER

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—With but a few boys at play as his audience, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh used the East River as a landing place on his return from a hunting trip near Richmond, Va. Lindbergh flew a large amphibian plane and had Mayor J. F. Bright, of Richmond, Va., as a passenger.

Lindbergh made the return trip in good time, the weather being excellent for flying, he said. He has no plans other than that he will attend the international civil aeronautics conference opening today in Washington. Immediately after his arrival here, Lindbergh and Mayor Bright went to the offices of the Loening Aeronautical Engineering Company nearby.

The famous aviator had just completed a hunting trip near Richmond, spending much time in the woods with Harry Guggenheim. The two flew from New York to Richmond in Lindbergh's big Loening ship.

Selfridge's Tutor Dies in Chicago at 82

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—John Devlin, who tutored H. G. Selfridge, department store owner, through the primary grades of merchandising, is dead at 82. Devlin was Marshall Field & Company's "sixty year diamond man" and is believed to have been the only man in the history of Chicago merchandising to have had a 60-year-career with one firm.

There were two things that Devlin was fond of recalling. One was the fact that he "broke in" Selfridge. The other was the time he held Potter Palmer prisoner at the point of a gun. That was one midnight when Potter Palmer came to the store and was mistaken by Devlin for a burglar.

A policeman detained them. Ryer made effective repairs. When the other two reached the house they found Ryer smiling. And then Allen and Carter were fined $25 each.

KUHN BROTHERS TRIALS BEGIN

David W. Kuhn, coal administrator in the Pittsburgh district during the World War, and his brother, Harry A. Kuhn, of New York, opened today in Federal Court to answer charges of making fraudulent income tax returns for 1923. The complaints were filed March 14, 1927, by United States Attorney John D. Meyer, and the actions were continued several times because of illness of one the defendants.

The information against David W. Kuhn, who is an attorney, alleges that in 1923 he had a gross income of $242,742.01 as profits from the sale of stocks, bonds and dividends from stock of corporations and that he had a net income of $173,881.36, upon which there was due the government as income tax $47,558.76.

The information against Harry A. Kuhn alleged that he had in 1923 a gross income of $242,742.07, a net income of $182,260, upon which a tax of $51,068.74 was due the government. The complaint avers he filed an income tax return in which he set his gross income at $2,929.50. David W. Kuhn's income tax return was alleged to have recorded his gross income as $3,319.50.

In the prosecution of the case the government is represented by Attorney Meyer and Assistant United States Attorney John A. McKan.

LOTTERIES RUN DESPITE QUIZ, SOOST TOLD

Despite the grand jury probe into the operation of lotteries, they are still going strong, it was testified in Magistrate W. J. Soost's public court today.

Harry Labonsky, 5521 Bryant street, who claimed to have been cheated out of his lottery winnings, Frank Debesi, alias Frank Kelly, 1241 Penn avenue, former Strip political lieutenant; Joseph Currie, 1216 Bigelow boulevard, and Charles Gabriel, 99 Elm street, were held for court charged with conducting a lottery. Bail was set at $1,000.

Labonsky testified he had written five tickets, each for $1, and one of the numbers was a winner, entitling him to $600. He said the heads of the lottery refused to pay and he complained to the police.

Labonsky said he had done business with Gabriel, who had been employed by Currie. Currie, it was charged, was employed by Debesi. The latter denied conducting the lottery.

After the hearing Labonsky announced that he had lost $500 playing the lottery and that unless he was paid the prize he would carry the case to District Attorney Gardner.

It was indicated at Mr. Gardner's office that Labonsky might be summoned before the county grand jury when it meets Friday to make its presentment.

Premier Jaspar Wins Struggle With Reds

BRUSSELS—(AP.)—The cabinet of Premier Henri Jaspar has emerged successfully from the long struggle in Parliament between the Conservative-Catholic-Liberal alliance and the Socialist-Communist opposition. The Communists were defeated in their efforts to trip the government on the question of national defense. The various left groups had rallied around the slogan, "six months' military duty," but failed to sway Parliament. Many signs point to a decline in power of the Socialist party and the Communists.

PREPARE GRAFT FINDINGS FOR COURT ACTION

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and his assistant, George F. P. Langfitt, are busy working today on the details of the presentment that the probing grand jury will present to Criminal Court, probably on Friday. The probe came to a close yesterday after almost 12 weeks.

A digest of thousands of pages of testimony taken was being made by Assistant District Attorney V. D. Edwards and a corps of stenographers.

After completing all their work, with the exception of passing on the presentments, the grand jury adjourned yesterday until Friday. There is a possibility of one or two witnesses being called on that day, although the big job will be to go over the presentment and make any final changes before it is handed to Presiding Judge James B. Drew.

It is anticipated that many indictments will be recommended in connection with the operation of lotteries and the sale of liquor, as well as the operation of gambling houses. There may be some surprise in the naming of police officers whose bank accounts have been investigated by the grand jury, it was said.

Bush Sees America's Golden Age at Start

Bush, head of the Bush Terminals System, thinks that the United States is only at the beginning of a period which will go down in history as "The Golden Age;" also that America is destined to gain world leadership in the arts, literature and science; the current increase of prosperity is a vital growing force founded on the most efficient industrial organization any nation ever has achieved.

CITY'S GARBAGE PLAN TERMED WASTEFUL

A theoretical plan for saving $1,000,000 a year in the disposal of garbage and rubbish, as proposed in a letter from George P. Kountz, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, was to come up in Council today. It was expected that the plan would be referred to the budget committee.

TWO BILLS RECEIVED

Coincident with receipt of Kountz's letter yesterday, Council received a bill for November for $32,531 from the Allegheny Garbage Company, for service on the North Side, and $103,676 from the American Reduction Company for the balance of the city. Kountz's letter stated:

"May I suggest that you advertise and make arrangements to award a long term contract, say five or ten years. This will, at least, result in real competitive bidding, and may I further suggest that instead of splitting up the contract into two parts that you demand competitive bidding for the whole city between the two parties now enjoying this monopoly.

"This will, at least, save the tremendous overhead charges against the city by both of the contractors, or Council should immediately take steps to collect and dispose of its own garbage and rubbish by building modern and up-to-date incinerating plants. Such plants are now in operation and have been brought up to such a high degree of efficiency that they are not offensive and obnoxious to any community.

LARGE SAVING CITED

"Either one of these plans will save the city in round numbers one million dollars as proposed in your budget set up of one million, seven hundred thousand dollars. It is a fact and can be demonstrated that any sum spent in 1929 in excess of seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars is wilful waste of the taxpayers' money.

ANTI-WAR PACT TO BE VOTED ON FRIDAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A tentative agreement to vote Friday on the Kellogg anti-war treaty was reached today by the senate foreign relations committee after it had questioned the secretary of state a second time. Chairman Borah of the committee, predicted favorable action on the treaty when the vote is taken.

Secretary Kellogg was before the committee for only 20 minutes. He reasserted his belief that the pact pledging this nation to renounce war did not infringe in any way upon America's Monroe doctrine. He said the fact that Russia had joined other world powers in signing the treaty did not constitute a recognition of that nation by this government.

NATION NOT INVOLVED

He insisted that the document carried no implied sanctions and could not involve this government in any way if it were violated.

Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, who bitterly fought the League of Nations and American entry into the World Court, asked that action go over until that day pending further study of the correspondence of the world powers in connection with their adherence to the pact.

While suggestions of reservations to the treaty were heard again, its proponents believed it would be reported to the Senate in the same form in which it has been tentatively approved by 61 of the 64 independent nations of the world.

$38,886 SAVED ON CITY CABS

Details of a saving during 1928 of $38,886 in the cost of taxicab fares for authorized city employes as compared with the expenditures during 1927 will be presented today in Council at a meeting of the Finance Committee.

The appropriation now has a balance of $11,111, as compared with a deficit in 1927 of $27,777.

The report was prepared by a councilmanic sub-committee appointed early this year by President James F. Malone to effect economies wherever possible without diminishing the public service.

The committee obtained from department heads the names of all employes whose duties required the use of taxicabs. In checking subsequent records as shown by fare receipt stubs, the committee found that considerable expense was caused by "waiting-time."

As a result the committee established relations with a "drive-yourself" concern, which charged a flat rate for each mile traveled.

The November poundage, however, represented a decrease as compared with the preceding month. The Postoffice Department said that the October figure of 465,635 was higher because of one more day in the month and the lack of a legal holiday as in November.

West Newton Man Held on U. S. Charge

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 11.—Charles Urisio, 24, of West Newton, Pa., was held to the federal grand jury under $10,000 bond by United States Commissioner John W. Kindelberger today, charged with transporting a 15-year-old girl from his home to Weirton, W. Va.

BOY WHO SLEW TEACHER COOL ABOUT FATE

International News Service.

STANTON, Mich., Dec. 11.—Indifferent to everything, including his own fate, "Jimmie" Deacons, 15-year-old slayer of Flossie Carter, pretty school teacher, of Sheridan, Mich., today sat in his cell in the Ionia county jail, engrossed in "jungle stories."

The boy's confession late yesterday that he had battered his former school teacher to death because she had slapped him three years ago, established the innocence of Lee Bracey, 19, the young teacher's sweetheart, who was being held by state police as her probable slayer.

"I killed her because I hated her," was Jimmie Deacons' repeated answer as to why he brutally murdered Miss Carter in her car on a lonely road near Sheridan five days ago.

"When anyone has been mean to me, I never forget it," he stated stubbornly.

WAITS FOR TEACHER

That "meanness," a chastisement for throwing a wad of paper when he was in fifth grade, was nurtured in the boy's heart until he resolved, on his way to school Friday morning, to take his revenge that afternoon.

After school was out, he waited for Miss Carter and asked her to take him out to one of his traps in her car.

At a lonely spot he suddenly seized her by the throat and choked her into insensibility, and afterwards beat her to death with a large stone.

When he arrived home later, he explained to his father, John Deacons, janitor of the Sheridan school, that the blood on his coat was that of a rabbit which he had killed and carried over his shoulder.

REED FAVORS HOT WEATHER WHITE HOUSE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—President Coolidge's proposal for the establishment of a summer white house at some point convenient to Washington offering a more pleasant climate than that found here met a warm response today from Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh.

Announcing that he stood ready to support legislation carrying out the President's proposal, Senator Reed said there was no reason why Congress should not have provided a summer residence for the Chief Executive long ago. He pointed out that all of the important nations of Europe have long since provided such facilities for their executives.

"Although it is too late for President Coolidge to benefit by the proposal he has made," said Senator Reed, "Congress should certainly take cognizance of his recommendation and remove the necessity for the President accepting an invitation to visit someone owning a big house every time he desires to leave Washington during the summer. The President should be provided with a summer place of his own where he could have complete freedom and rest, not always possible in the role of a guest."

SUMMER CAPITOL OPPOSED

The Pittsburgh Senator did not take kindly to the collateral suggestion that has come forward since the President's proposal, calling for the establishment of a summer capitol as well, or some structure near the summer White House where Congress might meet in special session as occasion arose. He said Congress was usually in session long enough anyhow, venturing the statement that special capitol facilities in some cool mountain retreat might prove a temptation for sessions to last all summer.

The second proposal was advanced on the idea that it would be desirable to have the executive and legislative branches of the government concentrated in the same place.

In addition to the Pennsylvania Senator, several other members of the upper chamber as well as members of the lower house have come forward with hearty endorsements of the Coolidge recommendation. It would therefore not be surprising to see action taken this session on one of the several bills certain to be introduced on the subject.

VIRGINIA SITE ADVOCATED

Mr. Coolidge did not recommend any particular location for the summer executive mansion, confining himself to the statement that it should be located at some point in the hills not more than 60 or 80 miles from Washington. Under this it is possible to consider several states for the selection, including Virginia, Maryland, West Virginia and even Pennsylvania.

Representative Woodrum, of Virginia, has already acted on the President's request and offered a bill to establish the executive headquarters in the Shenandoah National Park of his state.

Liquor Indictment Against Woman Hit

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Dec. 11.—Declaring in a motion made to the court that less than 12 members of the grand jury voted last week in favor of the indictment returned against Miss Kathryn Klee, charged with violation of the prohibition laws, Attorney Thomas W. Dickey and C. H. Akens asked that the indictment be quashed. It is also charged that the indictment was referred to the grand jury a second time after the indictment had been returned.

DIVER, CAUGHT 7 HOURS IN DAM, FREED

Held a prisoner for seven hours on the bed of the Ohio River when caught fast in a valve he was repairing on the Coraopolis end of Glen Cove one Dam No. 3, Diver Willis Zinkins, of Beaver, has but a slight recollection of his experience.

Diver James Stauffer, also of Beaver, was the hero of the frantic fight yesterday to save the trapped man. He worked under water for two hours before he was able to release Zinkins. The latter is confined to his home by the government's dredge boat John H. Kirby.

Zinkins was caught in a valve on which he was working on the bear trap of the dam. When he opened the valve he was forced inside and during the entire fight it was feared the dam would close and crush him.

SAVED BY SUIT

He was protected only by his diver's suit and when taken from the water was numb from the cold.

The rescue men had entered the water at 9 o'clock in the morning and was not brought to the surface until after 4 o'clock. When it was discovered he was caught in the valve every effort to save him was made and finally Stauffer was called. He entered the water at 2 o'clock and two hours later brought his fellow diver to the surface.

After saving Zinkins, Stauffer went down again a few minutes later to complete the work his companion had started. Dr. A. J. Berling, of Coraopolis, who treated Zinkins, said the man was suffering from exposure and was in a weakened condition.

PER-TUSSIN for SMOKERITIS (smoker's cough)

Introduces

A. R. GLANCY

Mr. Glancy, president of the Oakland Motor Car Company, yesterday presented the new Pontiac Six for 1929 to Oakland-Pontiac dealers of the Pittsburgh district at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel. He also spoke of the many refinements that are being incorporated in motor cars next year which will raise their value to a level higher than ever before.

'CAVE-MAN' LOVE METHODS BASIS OF DAMAGE ACTION

How Isaac Weinstein, former police magistrate, now a resident of California, is alleged to have used cave-man methods in making love to Mrs. Mamie E. Kamons, 5537 Bartlett street, and to have threatened to have her husband slain by gunmen if she told, was described by Mrs. Kamons in court today.

Mrs. Kamons and her husband, Louis J. Kamons, are suing Weinstein for damages growing out of his alleged actions in a drawing room on board a train from Pittsburgh to Dayton, O., in August, 1926.

Mrs. Kamons testified that she and Weinstein at the time were en route on the same train to join Kamons and Kamons' two sons and Mrs. Weinstein, who were on their way back from California, where Kamons had gone on business at Weinstein's request.

"Weinstein came into my drawing room, put his arms around me and kissed me," Mrs. Kamons testified. "He said, 'I sent your husband away because I love you. My wife is crabby and cross. You could be lots happier with me and my money and you could have three maids if you would leave your husband for me.'

TORE HER DRESS

"He said he would place $150,000 to my credit in the bank if I would be his," Mrs. Kamons testified.

She said he struggled with her and tore the left sleeve out of her dress and threatened if she told to have her husband "put out of the way by political gunmen." She sat up all night in the drawing room, she said, waiting for Weinstein to leave.

Kamons testified he had gone to California at Weinstein's request and was told that if he found investment prospects worth while, Weinstein would finance him to the extent of $250,000. He said he had become acquainted with Weinstein in 1924 in connection with building operations.

Weinstein was referred to by Mrs. Kamons as a magistrate, in her testimony. It was said that he was a magistrate at Center Avenue Police Station for six months during the administration of Joseph G. Armstrong.

U. S. Agents Given 3 "Dope" Suspects

After admitting in Central Police Court today that he had sold narcotics, Joseph Dougherty, 23, of 715 Moravian street, was turned over to the federal narcotic squad. Police testified they found a packet of morphine in a locker Dougherty rented in the Fort Wayne Station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Two Chinese, Yee Quong and Yee Lei, charged with the same offense, were turned over to government agents.

$60,000 ASKED FOR INJURIES TO GIRL

August Coffin has brought suit against the Sunshine Laundry Company for $60,000 damages for injuries received when a truck of the company ran down his daughter, Emma, 8, in front of 7319 Susquehanna street. The girl's left side is now paralyzed. It is also alleged in the bill of complaint, filed by Ben Paul Brasley, that the youngster has suffered an inversion of the right foot. The accident occurred September 10 last. It is averred that the driver of the truck was driving on the wrong side of the street.

Katherine McMahon has brought suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company for $50,000 damages for a broken left leg and a sprained right foot. She says, through her counsel, A. M. Connelly, that on June 4 she boarded a street car in Edgewood avenue, Swissvale, and that it was started so suddenly she was thrown to the floor.

Lawrence W. Ghrist, 24, Erie avenue, Glassport, has sued Joseph S. Amster, 549 Miller avenue, Clairton, for $15,000 damages, charging he was run down by Amster's automobile while about to board a street car at First street, Monongahela, November 12 last. His counsel is Samuel A. Weiss.

H. D. Moore, 917 Ramsey street, Wilkinsburg, injured about the head and ribs, when a Yellow Pioneer System Company bus struck a hole in the road near Columbus and bounced him to the roof of the car, has filed suit for $20,000 for personal injuries. Moore says that he bought a ticket at Kansas City through to Pittsburgh August 9 last. Moore, who is a carpenter, is represented by Attorney William M. Hall.

ONE OVERCOME AT BLAZE

Fire in the Friedman Millinery Company's establishment at Fourth avenue and Ninth street, New Kensington, last night, caused damage of $5,000 and injury to one fireman. Smoke and water damage was reported by other business houses.

Joseph Bostham was carried out of the building by fellow firemen, who found him unconscious. He was revived with an inhalator.

MANY MEN HAVE CONSTANT COUGH

Caused by Catarrhal, Asthma or Bronchial Trouble and Smoking.

SIMPLE HOME REMEDY SOON STOPS THE COUGH

Some men can smoke constantly and never cough, but let them catch a deep-seated cold and get a touch of Catarrhal, Bronchial or asthmatic trouble in their throat, Bronchial tubes or lungs and they are bound to have an awful cough. Their system has difficulty throwing it off, and in time they weaken and are apt to fall easy victim to respiratory lung diseases, pneumonia, fever or grippe.

NEED REAL REMEDY

Such coughs in themselves aren't dangerous or alarming, and any man may easily rid himself of such troubles and at the same time fortify, strengthen and build up his system so nature will be impervious to future attacks. It merely depends on how long it has clung to him how long it will take to throw it off.

A couple large bottles of Lin-O-Nine, a nice tasting, creamy white mixture of Flaxseed Oil, Cassia, Eucalyptus, Betula, Irish Moss and Glycerine does the trick. It is nice to take, soothes the membrane lining almost instantly; checks the cough and rapidly assists nature in the work of throwing off the catarrhal, bronchial or asthmatic symptoms.

Lin-O-Nine is more thorough and faster working than nasty, nauseating Cod Liver Oil, which is about the only other real remedy for such troubles.

Lin-O-Nine is made of finest ingredients and guaranteed by the long established, nationally known Kerr Chemical Corp. Doctors, specialists and thousands of users endorse it. Local druggists are featuring Lin-O-Nine. At this time of year grave dangers lurk in coughs and colds. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

ALL OF A SUDDEN

By EMILY BURTON

"WHAT does this mean?"

Mrs. Augusta Leigh's stern voice fell like a clap of thunder upon the hilarious group in the hall.

The door on the right closed softly and three of four pajama-clad girls faded from view, leaving one girl alone with pajama-clad Allen Leigh.

"Merle Poyner! I'm surprised at you," continued the white-haired hostess. "I shall ask you to return home tomorrow. I invited you to my house because I loved your mother. For the same reason I shall write your father that I found you dancing with my son at two o'clock in the morning—wearing pajamas!"

"Oh, mother!" protested young Leigh, "this isn't the Victorian era. There's nothing wrong about pajamas."

"Silence!" ordered the furious woman. Then turning upon the cowering girl she demanded:

"How did this happen?"

Allen answered for Merle.

"We all came in from the beach an hour ago. The other fellows went on home and the girls—your invited house-guests, mother—retired. I wasn't sleepy, so I turned on the radio. A minute later I heard the girls dancing upstairs in the hall and joined them. That's all there is to it."

The outraged hostess refused to be placated.

"Goodnight, Miss Poyner," she said icily. "I probably—"

Allen answered the ring and received a telegram from a messenger boy outside. Mrs. Leigh hurried down the steps and stood beside him reading the message aloud.

"Get certain papers from Henry's wife. She knows what to give you. Bring them to me before 9 a. m. tomorrow. Don't fail me. Important. Father."

Merle hadn't intended listening, of course, but she heard anyway; for she was still rooted to the spot in the upper hall, dazed by the sudden attack of her hostess.

Somebody else had also overheard the reading of that message. Merle, who was standing near the banisters, saw a figure dart back into a rear room downstairs.

It was a servant—Davis—the new butler. This Davis was not really a butler, however. He was a shyster who had come to work in the Leigh home for the express purpose of securing information concerning Mr. Leigh's business entanglement. The papers in question were safely hidden in the home of Henry Leigh, Jr., and no one except the father and elder son knew how vastly important they were in the present crisis of their affairs.

Merle did not attempt to sleep that night. How she hated to go home and face her father and stepmother! They were such straightlaced, oldfashioned folks. They would think she had lost her mind, of course. She packed her suitcase and dressed for traveling. It was still dark outside, when she stepped out on a little second floor balcony.

"What's the dope, Davis?" she heard one say.

"Young Leigh has gone to get those papers. He'll be back here about five o'clock. It's up to us to get him before he reaches home. There's a lonely stretch of road half a mile from here. We'll meet him there."

These men were plotting against Allen! Merle ran to the telephone and called his brother's home. A sleepy voice told her that Mr. Allen had just left.

Davis and his confederate were still standing beneath the balcony when Merle slipped out the kitchen door and ran swiftly through the back yard. She started in the direction that she knew Allen would take. On and on she ran. She was breathless and exhausted. The darkness and the uncanny silence frightened her. She was dreadfully afraid that the two men would overtake her. But she must warn Allen.

Just at dawn she sighted his sport roadster. She stepped out into the middle of the road and waved frantically.

"Why Merle!" he exclaimed. "What on earth?"

She jumped up on the running board before the car stopped.

"Turn round and go the other way," she gasped.

He obediently whirled his car. "Now tell me," he said as they drove back over the route he had just come.

"It took her only a few moments for her to tell him all she knew, which was not much. However, it was enough to send him speeding toward a little country station where he hoped to flag an early mail train.

"I can't catch this train!" she protested, as he pushed her up the car steps. "It doesn't go anywhere near my home."

"That doesn't matter," he cried, "Come on."

"You are going to Cleveland, I'm going home," she wailed, "and somebody must look after your car."

"I'll wire mother to send for the car. Come on."

By that time the train was pulling out and Merle was on board. Half laughing, half crying, she followed Allen into the observation car. They had the car to themselves at that early hour, and they were soon ready to continue their argument.

"We might as well get married today as any other time," Allen announced all of a sudden.

"Married? Who said we were going to marry? I didn't know you had ever thought of such a thing!"

"I hadn't until I saw mother razzing you this morning. You looked so childish and innocent and sort of bewildered." Then he added impetuously, "Honestly Merle I'm crazy about you. It seems to me I've loved you always and never knew it until today."

"I have loved you always," she answered, "and knew it."

WRIGHT LAUDED IN AVIATION FESTIVAL

DAYTON, O., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Orville Wright, who braved the jeers of scoffers in the early years of his flying experiments, last night received the highest honors of a grateful city, proud of the achievements of its first citizen.

Winding up a full day's celebration in which thousands of persons who knew the Wrights as neighbors and fellow-townsmen participated, officials of the city of Dayton presented the world's first airplane pilot with a glowing testimonial of its affection and recognition of his work.

"With justifiable pride the citizenship of Dayton, young and old, join in this celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first human flight, made by Orville and Wilbur Wright," George W. Lane read from the illuminated parchment, which was presented to Mr. Wright on behalf of the city.

CITY'S PRIDE TOLD

"This city gave to the world of science these two aeronautical pioneers. Here their experimentations were carried on. Here their first crude laboratory was equipped. Here was born the inspiration from which heavier-than-air flying has become possible.

"Theirs was a happy labor, however discouraging at times the task. They saw the future as no one else before them had seen it. With perseverance and matchless skill, they bent to the undertaking, and having set their hand to the plow, they did not turn back. Dayton is proud of the Wright Brothers and of their unparalleled achievement.

"Today this community, which gave them to the world, pays tribute to their genius and upon the altar of time sets a new beacon for science. Their names are exalted to the ends of the earth. Their deeds have become imperishable. They belong to the immortals of all history."

The city's testimonial had been preceded by addresses of praise from foreign and American governmental officials, but it was the home town folks who carried a noisy ovation to the modest Mr. Wright.

VISIT BROTHERS GRAVE

The foreign delegates, representing most of the world's civilized nations, visited the grave of Wilbur Wright in Woodland Cemetery late in the afternoon.

The foreign delegations will attend the international civil aeronautics conference in Washington called by President Coolidge for December 12. Mr. Wright planned to leave today for the Washington conference at which he will be the guest of honor.

The week long celebration in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first human flight will end next Monday at Kitty Hawk, N. C., the scene of the first flight. The cornerstone of a government memorial to the Wright Brothers and a tablet marking the scene of the first flight will be unveiled there.

Stubborn Cough Quickly Ended by Famous Recipe

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that usually follow the "flu."

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Six Seconds For Safety

This, the latest of the Pittsburgh Motor Club's "safety wise cracks," is one of the snappy sayings through which it is hoped to promote caution during the Christmas season. Motorists are asked to memorize them

Accidents may be prevented by action taken six seconds before the threatened crash. Last year 25,775 persons were killed in the United States by automobiles.

SLEUTH TELLS OF POSING AS RUM BUYER

Joseph A. Frayne, assistant prohibition administrator, on the witness stand in Federal Court yesterday, told how he posed as a "big rum buyer" in Johnstown and other Cambria county towns last August during an investigation he made that led to the indictment of eight men and the seizure of 15 barrels of whisky.

Preceding the trial before Judge Nelson McVicar, five of the defendants, Samuel Maiorana, Anthony Teresi, Clarence Mansfield, Vincenzo Castalgna and Frank Patta, pleaded guilty to violating the national prohibition law. The other three, John E. Shardt, proprietor of a hotel at Meyersdale, William Boyle, and his son, Thomas F. Boyle, are on trial.

Frayne testified that he was introduced to the three defendants on trial as "Doc" Mars, head of the commissary department of a coal company in West Virginia, who was seeking "whisky" for coal miners. He said he met Boyle and his son through Shardt and let it be known that he was in the market for 100 barrels of whisky to take to the coal fields.

FLASHED ROLL

To prove his sincerity, he said, he flashed a roll of paper money, the outside note a $500 bill, and proved to his new acquaintances he was on friendly terms with John Rager, who, he said, was a Johnstown gambler. Through the Boyles, he said, arrangements were made for him to purchase 25 barrels of whisky, and he sent trucks, manned by prohibition agents, to a farm at Mineral Springs.

After the barrels, according to the testimony, were loaded on two trucks, Frayne made known his identity, arrested several of the men and confiscated the liquor. It was also brought out in the testimony that the "money" to close the deal had been turned over to Rager to hold until the whisky was on the trucks and safely away, but instead of being real currency it was a bundle of paper he had placed in an envelope.

The hearing will be resumed today. The two Boyles and Shardt are represented by Attorney Edward Voll. The five who entered pleas will be sentenced later.

"Eavesdropper" Jailed Under Old Law

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Theodore Fortune, 35, is in jail awaiting sentence after pleading guilty in Municipal Court to the charge of being a common eavesdropper. Fortune listened to conversations of guests in their rooms in a Boston hotel and repeated them to other guests.

The charge, based on an old statute, read in part: "Said person did listen about the houses and under the windows and eaves of the houses of divers good people, hearing tattle and repeating the same."

Thief Nearly Drowns Victim in Bathtub

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(INS.)—The latest wrinkle in banditry was uncovered by police with the arrest of Edward Leventhal, surprised by Mrs. Rose Meller while robbing her house. Leventhal knocked the woman unconscious, put her in a bathtub and turned on the water, police said.

VISITS JAWORSKI

MRS. CATHERINE LOGAN

Mrs. Catherine Logan, Detroit, one of two sisters, came to Pittsburgh to visit the doomed Paul Jaworski, lying in Allegheny County Jail, awaiting the week of December 31, set by the Governor for his execution.

Burns from Stove Cause Girl's Death

Lucy Marcella, 9, of 405 Pearl street, died last night in the West Penn Hospital from burns suffered in her home Sunday. According to the morgue report, the girl's clothing ignited from a stove.

SISTER VISITS JAWORSKI IN JAIL

Almost all of society may be against Paul Jaworski, Flathead gang leader doomed to die in the electric chair on the last day of the year, but there is at least one person who has not deserted him.

In the drab house of stone and steel—the Allegheny County Jail—where the crippled gangster fretfully awaits the time when he will pay with his life for the lives he has snuffed out, a sad-faced little woman timidly sought a visit yesterday with Paul.

"I am his sister," she explained in a quavering voice. She was registered as Catherine Logan, of Detroit. Jail attaches permitted her to talk with Paul in the visitors' cage. She did not stay long, turning from the barred grating in a rather listless fashion and slowly made her way to the street.

THINKS PUNISHMENT ENOUGH

She shunned reporters and cameramen. She quickened her steps along Ross street into Fifth avenue, turning South in Grant street. Finally she spoke:

"It's a shame the way everybody has turned against us because of Paul. Why can't we be left alone in our grief and why do they have to send Paul to the chair?

"It's the most inhuman thing I ever heard of—this saving his life to take it away again. Why didn't they let him die in Cleveland instead of prolonging his agony in this brutal manner?

"Is this humanity?

"Our only desire is to spare his life—the life that almost went out when he was captured in Cleveland. They brought him back to life, but what for—to take it away again? What right have they to do that?"

Window Cleaner Hurt In Three-Story Fall

While cleaning windows on the third floor of the Pitt News Company, 301 Third avenue, Frank Spalding, 32, of 221 Collart square, fell to the street and suffered a fracture of the skull and right leg. Spalding, employed by the Penn Window Cleaning Company, 119 Fourth avenue, was rushed to the Allegheny General Hospital by S. A. Bachman, 112 Second avenue. His condition is serious.

Speeding Car Kills Two Boys on Sled

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Two boys on a sled coasted to their deaths under the wheels of a speeding automobile at Rosehill and Tioga streets last night. The motorist fled in his car, leaving his victims lying in the wreckage of their sled on the ice-covered highway. The dead boys were Donald Walker, 9, and Andrew Buchanan, nine.

W. Va. May Make Picking of State Flower Crime

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A suggestion that it be made unlawful to pluck West Virginia's state flower, the rhododendron, was adopted by the West Virginia Wild Life League at its annual meeting.

The suggestion as adopted by the league provided that it should be made an offense to cut, pull or break wild flowers or shrubs in West Virginia forests, but specified rhododendron and mountain laurel as those to be especially protected. It also declared that in the event the suggestion was enacted into law, it be made unlawful to transport rhododendron or mountain laurel out of the state.

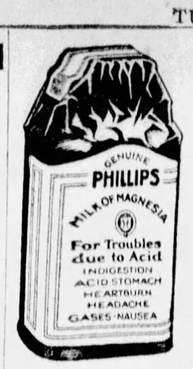
Girl Dies in Fall As She Flees Robber

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—A girl bookkeeper fell four floors through an elevator shaft to her death yesterday while attempting to evade a holdup man who had tried to obtain a payroll which he erroneously believed she carried.

After Miss Shirley Bergman, 20, leaped from the elevator at the third floor of a downtown loft building and lost her balance and fell back into the shaft, the holdup man descended two floors in the car, dropped his gun and used the elevator cable to slide to the street floor. He was captured after a short chase.

Man Rescues Seven Children in Fire

ERIE, Pa., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Delmo Speith rescued his family of seven children yesterday when he was awakened by the crackling of flames in his home. The home was destroyed.



When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

A loudly heralded soprano, Gina Pinnera, and a popular tenor, Paul Althouse, entertained us very well in Syria Mosque last night. The audience was vacillating, but eventually made up its mind that it would like more of everything, and so there were many encores.

Gina Pinnera is a new star in the concert field, and, one may easily suspect, is making a play for the operatic stage. Her voice is doubtless one of the most beautiful among the younger singers; it does remind one of Ponselle's. There are high notes of exceeding mellowness and richness, a good middle and lower register, which still want definite placement and fullness. She sings with ease, has fine breath control, and quite clear diction in the several languages which compose her program.

As a musician, however, this singer is very young. In her long airs from "Forza del Destino" and "Norma" she failed either dramatically or musically to hold interest beyond the first page. In the "Walkyrie Cry" she sang as she had been taught, but had none of Brunnhilde's scorn for Fricka and her marriage rights, nor her good-natured cajoling of Wotan. In the first group of songs there seemed to be no purpose, and no one could ever forgive a musician for so distorting Nevin's enchanting lullaby, "Mighty Lak a Rose." When the accompanist struck the first notes of Brahm's "Meine Liebe ist Gruen" the real test of musicianship had come. Here, as in most of Pinnera's singing, were signs of unlimited possibilities; the voice seems adequate for every need. It wants time and more study.

Paul Althouse is a tenor of wide experience, doubtless more successful in his operatic work than in songs. That, one may believe, is because he chose such inconsequential music. Both the "Walkyrie" and "Giaconda" airs were brilliantly sung, and in the Nile duet from "Alda" he set the pace with fine assurance.

Earl Mitchell played very well for the tenor. Even the widely experienced Giuseppe Bamboschek of the Metropolitan opera, who played for Pinnera, might have taken a cue from him as a concert accompanist.

TELLS AMAZING HEALTH SECRET

McKees Rocks Man Feels Better Than He Has In 20 Years; Praises Ten Herbs.

"I feel better now than I have during the last 20 years," was the statement of Mr. John W. Herbert, 42 Fair Oaks Street, McKees Rocks, Pa., (near Pittsburgh) to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this famous new herbal medicine to crowds of people. "The fact that I can hardly remember the time when I did not have stomach trouble, but now can enjoy a hearty meal without having any distress afterwards, will prove what Ten Herbs has done for me," continued Mr. Herbert, who is employed in the McKees Rocks shops of the P. & L. E. Railroad.

MR. JOHN W. HERBERT

"I sought relief in all kinds of medicines, none of which did me any permanent good. Food did not digest properly, and my misery would start two or three hours after eating. Gas would form and I would bloat terribly. Gas seemed to roll around so much at night that it kept me awake. I was badly constipated. I was bilious and became so drowsy during the day I could hardly keep awake. There were pains across my back, which was so weak I could lift scarcely anything. I had rheumatic pains in my knees and they would shoot up to my shoulders. At one time they were so bad I had to quit work. The pains eventually played havoc with my nerves.

"I am a changed man since taking Ten Herbs. I am free of stomach trouble—no more gas or bloating. My bowels are regular. I used to have to arise at night, but that now is a thing of the past. Biliousness and drowsiness have left me. The rheumatism in my knees and shoulders and the pains in my back have disappeared. My nerves are stronger, and I sleep better at night. I am on the job every day, with new strength, energy and ambition. If Ten Herbs can do all this for me, I think it can do it for others, and that is why I heartily endorse your medicine to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

Chinese to Build Big Radio Plant

Train Wrecked, Man 'Riding Rods' Injured

CORNING, N. Y., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The hazards of "riding the rods" were painfully impressed on William Cavannaugh of Scranton, Pa., when the New York Central freight train on which Cavannaugh was an unlisted passenger was wrecked near Moreland. Twenty-two cars and the locomotive were derailed, Cavannaugh receiving injuries which sent him to the Montour Falls Hospital. The crew escaped unhurt.

SMALL STORES CALLED SAFE

Small merchants who keep abreast of the times have no need to worry about the future of business, J. B. Loughran, secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association, said last night in an address before the members of the etail Credit Men's Association in the Roosevelt Hotel. He does not believe that the small merchant is doomed, regardless of chain store activities, big combinations and large organizations. Small merchants must take stock of themselves and change their methods to meet modern conditions, he said. He showed there was $65,000 organizations of various kinds in the country performing necessary services for the merchant.

The proposed garnishee law was discussed. Questionnaires regarding the handling of credit accounts were discussed by W. B. Morgan, Harry E. Engel, W. E. McConnell, T. L. Ford, A. B. Buckeridge and President H. E. Wilson, who presided.

City's Architects in Smocks and Brogans Work Nights to Make Clubrooms in Downtown Back Alley

KLOMAN KUTCHUKIAN SCHOEPF

This is not a slapstick comedy, but members of the Pittsburgh Architectural Club painting and decorating their new clubrooms at 1 Charette way. Charles A. Kloman, vice president, and Nischan Kutchukian are doing a "paint and brush act," while Al Schoepf plays "We Won't Go Home Until Morning."

CHARLES M. STOTZ

Mixing cement for the clubroom's rustic floor is the job Charles M. Stotz, president, has picked for himself. Somewhat different from the work he does in the office of his father, Edward Stotz, who designed the Schenley High School and Monongahela Bank buildings!

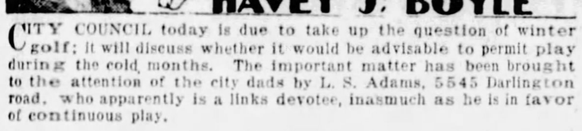
STILES LOOMIS SCHMERTZ

Robert Schmertz, E. R. Loomis and E. C. Stiles prove themselves as adept in mixing paint as in designing architectural masterpieces. For six weeks they and other members of the club have been devoting many hours to painting and decorating the clubrooms, to be opened shortly after the first of the year.



CITY COUNCIL today is due to take up the question of winter golf; it will discuss whether it would be advisable to permit play during the cold months. The important matter has been brought to the attention of the city dads by L. S. Adams, 5545 Darlington road, who apparently is a links devotee, inasmuch as he is in favor of continuous play.

It seems that the links in Schenley Park—the only public layout in the city—has been closed by order each year right after Thanksgiving Day. We figured that there must be fine reasons for stopping the sport, having heard it said that play during the cold weather would make a mess out of the course for the succeeding year. During the progress of a discussion in the editoral rooms, we voiced this little contention in the midst of a flock of golfers. In another instant, two or three club-swingers were at our throats, including Howard Cassidy, who keeps fit on the Schenley fairways, not to mention the rough spots and bunkers.

"WHOEVER told you that wasn't so good," said Mr. Cassidy with considerable disgust. "Did your advisor ever hear of a certain links at Oakmont where they play a national event every other year or so? Well, when you see him just tell him that they play Oakmont all the year around and when Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen and the boys drift into town they rave about the course."

So we take it that Mr. Cassidy is in favor of municipal golf with or without ear-muffs and arctics. And after Howard had touched on the fact that many grand days had passed since the course was closed, we began to think that there was some little merit to the case of these snowbirds. It seems that Mr. Cassidy played the Schenley course many times this summer when the links were about as safe as Nicaragua during an election, what with a hundred and one balls zipping over one's head. To obtain something like freedom, Howard wants to play with red balls on the snow. So if the idea gets favorable action, you need not be surprised to read some day of a searching party locating our colleague in a snowbank on No. 10 hole.

IT'S hard to excel good vaudeville as a means of enjoyment in the theater. Gallagher and Shean, Joe Cook, Chic Sale and a dozen other stars appeared to have a greater "kick" in their stuff when they strutted the variety boards. A current team with a lot of fine dialogue brings a big laugh discussing "family trees," etc. One performer has been telling of his heritage and finally lets go of the cleanup punch by remarking, "Why, would you believe it—our piano goes back to Louis the Fourteenth!"

"That's nothing," pipes the comedian,—"ours goes back to Sears-Roebuck on the fifteenth!"

Walter Maranville's return to Johnny Evers and the Boston Braves carries a sentimental touch to many Pittsburgh fans. Rabbit and Evers were bosom pals as they drove to a flag and World Series honor in 1914, yet they had different viewpoints on ball games, despite the fact that each was a direct, positive type. Maranville's philosophy told him to talk cold turkey with everybody connected with a defeat in the clubhouse after a game was ended, but after going over everything, even to the extent of fisticuffs, to cease worrying about the day's game. Evers however, could not leave his feelings in the locker room.

JOHNNY would fret and moan about dumb mistakes hours after the game was over and Maranville being his room-mate, the Rabbit had a tough time on many occasions in trying to shake off the hard loser. Rabbit says he often came into the room at midnight to enjoy some slumber only to hear Johnny storming about one play or another that helped to bring defeat for the Braves. But the other boys on that team state that these two little fellows could work faster on a double play than anybody in the sport.

ARCHITECTURAL CLUB NEARLY READY

For weeks on evenings and Saturday afternoons members of the Pittsburgh Architectural Club have been donning smocks and overalls to paint and decorate their own club rooms at 1 Charette way. Incidentally, Charette way is the name city Council has approved for the hitherto unnamed alley which extends East in the middle of the block in Cecil way, between Liberty and Penn avenues. Councilman W. Y. English took up with city Council the naming of the alley in honor of the Pittsburgh Architectural Club.

DO OWN PAINTING

All painting and decorating work for the new club rooms is being done by the architects themselves. They started about three weeks ago and hope to complete the job by the end of this month. The date for the formal dedication and "housewarming" is to be announced later.

According to Charles M. Stotz, president, the club's new quarters will contain a large dining room, lounge room and a working room, where members will find facilities for making lithographs and etchings.

OR KIS ARTISTIC

A fine piece of work already executed by the members is the staircase leading from the entrance to the second floor. The walls are done in plaster stucco and there are two beautiful stained windows. To the right near the entrance they also built a niche in which there will be placed two sculptured figures representing the world's first architects.

The new club rooms represent the materialization of a 30 years' dream, Mr. Stotz said, and will prove a big factor in bringing Pittsburgh's architects more closely together in a social way. The club now has a membership of 140.

Library Church Dedicates Tablet

A bronze tablet inscribed with the names of 13 Civil War veterans was dedicated Sunday in the Library Baptist Church by members of St. Clair Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution. The names are those of the soldiers buried in the Peter's Creek Shrine of the American Revolution. Edward M. Golden presided and George F. McEwan made the principal address.

Commercial Flying, Lieut. Dake's Theme

Lieut. Robert E. Dake, Pittsburgh aviator, will speak on commercial aviation at the weekly luncheon of the Exchange Club today in the William Penn Hotel. Lieut. Dake took second place in the transcontinental air derby and won first place in the derby from Los Angeles to Cincinnati.

Brighton Rd. Home Damaged by Fire

The home of Charters Montgomery, at 2666 Brighton road, North Side, was damaged $1,000 by fire. The blaze which started on th upper floor of the two-story frame structure destroyed furniture and clothing before extinguished by firemen who responded to an alarm.

AUTO PARKING GIVEN HARD BLOW IN DORMONT

The new traffic ordinance for the Borough of Dormont was passed by a vote of 4 to 3 at a regular council meeting held in the Municipal Building.

No parking within 60 feet of safety zones was one of the restrictions included, and one-hour parking on portions of West Liberty, from Illinois to Tennessee avenues, was also mentioned. Council also passed a new ordinance prohibiting all-night parking on streets.

These items will be submitted to Burgess William S. Haddock for his approval before they will become effective. Charles Chamberlin, president, presided.

When interviewed, Burgess Haddock said that he could not say just what he was going to do in regard to the new traffic ordinances, but he will wait until Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners hold their next meeting, and is willing to co-operate with them in their traffic ordinances so as to have a co-ordinated traffic system between the borough and the township.

2 BOYS HELD IN NEAR FATAL SHOOTING

John Kronenberger, 18, 421 Kirk avenue, Carrick, shot by one of two boys Sunday, is recovering in the South Side Hospital from a gunshot wound under the left shoulder.

Carrick police received a telephone call that a hunter was shot. The sergeant dispatched the patrol wagon with Officers William Fallett and Carl Barchfield to investigate. When they arrived at the corner of Kirk and Chester avenues, they found that the boy had been shot. They took him to the office of Dr. Walter H. Deer, 2707 Brownsville road, who gave him first aid and ordered him removed to the hospital, but as yet the bullet has not been located.

HIDDEN RIFLE FOUND

The officers returned to the scene and questioned several boys. Later they arrested Joseph Phillips, 14, 2436 Diehl street, and Joseph M. Walker, 14, 2416 Grenroy street, in a house at 2439 Diehl street. They were questioned and told the police where the rifle was hidden. The officers found a 22 calibre rifle buried under a shed in a hollow in the rear of Zimmerman's Cemetery, in the 2500 block, Brownsville road. The boys were booked in the Carrick Police Station as suspicious persons, and according to police, on account of their ages, they were detained in juvenile detention rooms until they have completed their investigations.

SHOT INTO AIR

According to Mrs. Kronenberger, the boy's mother, John told her that he and his two brothers, James, 17, George, 15, and Anthony Walker, 20, and Sylvester, 17, brothers, of Kirk avenue, all standing on a boardwalk at the corner of Kirk and Custer avenues, one block from their homes, while the two boys who were arrested were at the foot of the steps looking upward.

One of the boys had a rifle and started shooting in the air. John felt a pain, but thought that he had been struck with a stone. One of his companions noticed that blood was dripping from under his arm, became alarmed and called the police.

John Oldham, 22, of Gopher street, will have a warm place to sleep and regular meals for the next month at least through the courtesy of Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, who committed him to jail Saturday night. After bothering police and peace officers of down-river counties for several weeks, Oldham finally got himself arrested on a disorderly conduct charge. Justice Morgan asked jail officials to give the prisoner a mental examination.

FOUR HURT AT CROSSING ASK $65,000

Four suits totaling $65,000 were filed in Common Pleas Court yesterday against the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as a result of a crossing accident in Braddock October 29 when as many persons were injured.

Attorney B. Robert Averbach representing the plaintiffs alleges in the bill of complaint that the wheels of the automobile in which the plaintiffs were riding became caught in a hole as the machine, driven by Julius Shogan, of Bradock, was on the third track. A train came along and struck the machine, injuring all of the occupants, Miss Irene Hunnell, who asks $35,000, being the worst hurt. She was injured about the legs and body. Miss Hunnell, who lives in Braddock, was joined in the action by her father, I. N. Hunnell. Shogan asks $10,000 damages and the same amount is claimed by Andrew J. Shoyak, of Swissvale, and Joseph Tomko, who, with the Hunnell girl, were guests in the Shogan automobile.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.

I told you Mr. Coolidge would run again some day. Didn't you see where he asked this St. Louis Post Dispatch to get another White House where you could escape the asphyxiation of the other end of Pennsylvania avenue? That request couldn't have been made for Hoover, for it will take eight years to get it through Congress.

I think that trip to Virginia the other day did it, when for the first time he saw Washington's and Jefferson's old week-end hideaways. But he can acquire the same results by just shutting the gates on the house he is in.

It's not the humidity in Washington, it's the humility in having to meet who you do. Every senator with a hill east of the Rocky Mountains will start trying to peddle it to us now.

Yours, WILL.

Madge Starts for Home After Being Called A Gold-Digger

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Madge Sayer, young and beautiful, lives in a dingy New York apartment with her father, an unsuccessful inventor, who always plans for riches that never come. Madge seeks thrills and gaiety, and longs for the intoxication of joyous living. At a party given by Frances Storrs, a friend, she meets Carroll Dudley, handsome artist, aviator and "man about town." Dudley lays siege to Madge, who is warned by Frances Storrs. She dines in his luxurious studio apartment. He takes her on a midnight airplane ride and following several days' rushing asks her to pose for him. Madge agrees on certain conditions. These he accepts, but after posing Dudley takes Madge in his arms and professes his love. She assures him of her own love and speaks of marriage which Dudley avoids. Over an accidentally "broken-in" wire Madge hears him called "a Prince of Cads." He allays her suspicions, but when he is out a woman appears in the studio. "I am Mrs. Carroll Dudley," she announces to Madge. Carroll explains that love made him hide his marriage but now he is to be free. Madge accepts his explanations. Unexpectedly she returns from a visit to her father now staying in the country and finds that Carroll has exhibited her painting to a party of his friends. In a rage she rips the canvas with a stiletto and rushes into the street. She wakes up in a hospital room with flowers and nurses, and a message from the rich young Michael Winchester whose car had run her down. Winchester falls in love with Madge, and insists that she go to Atlantic City to recuperate. Dudley follows her there. When he insinuates that Winchester is keeping her she sends him away. Her father informs her that his last nickel is gone. Winchester has placed a car and chauffeur at her disposal. She drives out to a party where she meets Frances Storrs and her old New York friends.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WAKE up, Madge! Buy an alarm clock! Rich men dont' do that sort of thing, and the richer they come the more they hate parting with a dime. Think of it! He knocks you down. You won't take damages. He insists you here like the Queen of Sheba with bells on. He offers your father a job, and you think he isn't going to make you a proposition! Excuse me if I smile!"

"Are all men beasts?" Madge demanded furiously. "Isn't there a decent one among them? At least, Michael Winchester hasn't pretended that he loves me—loves me, get that?—as Carroll pretended! But how horrible it all is, Frances! How low and vile!"

Frances started to answer her, but was interrupted by the ringing of the phone bell. Without waiting for Anna, Madge answered it. Then she held the instrument toward Frances.

"For you," she said.

After she had finished talking, she turned to Madge. "It was the Peabodys," she said. "They've come back to life and some friends dropped in. They want you to come to a party they are throwing. They have bumped into Deborah West, who pretends she is not here with Peregrine Blagdon, her butter and egg man. Come along, Madge. It will do you good."

"From Mr. Winchester, Miss."

"I have to go back to New York," Michael had written. "Meanwhile, please get well as soon as you can. Michael."

Madge handed the note to Frances with a little feeling of triumph, her feeling of worry disappearing as she felt more reassured.

"I told you so," Madge smiled.

Frances waited until Anna had left them. "There is one chance in six millions that all this is on the level," she said then. "You are so hard up you have to take chances—so just wait. You don't stand to lose anything, because as soon as he begins to tell you that he loves you but 'please excuse him because he can't marry you,' you have only to say: 'This is not unexpected, my dear Mr. Winchester, and please close the door as you go out!' Now come on to the party." And Frances led the way downstairs to where Collins waited with the big car.

At the Peabodys' place, they found Peregrine Blagdon and Deborah West, looking more defiantly beautiful than ever. Gladys and Ernest Peabody and a man and a girl who were introduced vaguely as "Burt" and "Whoofy" completed the number.

They were all to drive out a few miles to the estate of yet another man who, it seemed, was a great friend of Blagdon.

It gave Madge a little thrill to say grandly:

"Oh, you'll be so crowded. You go on, and Frances and I will follow in my car—unless I can give some of you a lift."

"Let her Ritz her stuff if she gets a kick out of it!" Deborah West, who had had several drinks, called shrilly.

But Madge stuck to her point, so she drove out behind the others, Frances Storrs at her side.

"You know what's burning Deborah?" Frances grinned. "She hasn't been able to work Peregrine for the roadster she wants, and it just kills her that you have this car!"

At the ornate estate, where they were received by a man who might have been Peregrine's twin soul, everybody proceeded to mix cocktails with champagne and champagne with whisky, and to get rapidly drunk. But Madge, as usual, made one drink last her the whole evening, so she remained perfectly sober—and thoroughly bored.

Not so with Peregrine Blagdon. Again and again he tried to interest Madge in himself, and at last attempted to kiss her by force.

"I wish you would understand that nothing about you, including your bankroll, could interest any girl who wasn't a professional gold-digger!" Madge flung at him.

Deborah West, who had observed this little scene, swayed drunkenly across the room.

"So Peregrine doesn't interest you?" she sneered. "I'll say he shouldn't! Why would you be interested in a couple of millions? With Michael Winchester as a sugar-daddy. I'd say you don't have to worry about Peregrine!"

CHAPTER XII.

THE day-coach was hot and uncomfortable the next morning as Madge sat silently by her wondering father. How different was this mode of traveling from the luxury of only two days before!

Madge was nervously reviewing the events of past evening. Since her accident, never had she walked less limpingly than when she had achieved her exit from that room. And Frances, the ever-faithful Frances, had gone with her. On the drive back to the hotel, Madge had known shame and anger, but the latter had passed when she realized that there was excuse for Deborah West's taunting jibe. Of course, Deborah being what she was, she would imagine that Madge was under the protection of Michael Winchester. What else could she think? Madge had lost no time, and despite the protests of her father, she had bought her own tickets and left Atlantic City early the next morning, haunted by the memory of Deborah's slur.

And what would Michael feel when he heard of it? Wouldn't Michael think she had no mind of her own, nor grace enough, to appreciate his delicate generosity?

Wearied by such mental conflict, she turned irritably to her father, who was complaining of the heat and the stuffiness of the coach.

"Oh, father, we can't go on accepting things from Mr. Winchester. My ankle is ever so much better—"

"But, my dear child," he argued, "I don't understand the sudden decision. One minute you're quite content to stay at Atlantic City and let Mr. Winchester repay in part what he owes you for the accident. The next—we have to come dashing back to New York."

"I am a woman, father. Surely you don't expect me to be reasonable!" Madge dismissed the subject.

A surprise awaited her as the train pulled into the New York depot. On the platform, and not, like ordinary folk, by the gate, was Michael Winchester. Porters took charge of Madge's baggage, but she waved aside the wheel chair which Michael had waiting for her. It seemed that golden tentacles were stretched out to grasp her as Michael expressed astonishment at her sudden departure.

"What was the matter?" he demanded. "I thought you were so happy, and I was hoping the air would do you good. I feel that I have failed miserably, Madge." He was almost pathetic in his address.

Madge felt a little repentant. Why had she doubted him?

"Please, I don't want to go into it now," she said. "Some other time I will try and make you understand."

"I hope I didn't offend you," he said in a low voice, as, leaning on his arm, Madge moved slowly away from the train, with her father walking morosely behind them with Tam, struggling with his leash.

"Of course you haven't offended me, Michael," Madge tried to laugh. "But you must see that I can't go on accepting favors from you. You have more than paid me for the damages of my accident."

"Then, if I've more than paid," he said quietly, "that puts you in my debt! So will you pay it off by granting me one last favor?"

To be continued Tomorrow.

JILL FROST, JACK'S TWIN SISTER

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

WONDER why they never mention Jack Frost's twin sister, Jill? Ah, she's a peach—but you couldn't call a Princess of the snows a "peach," could you? For she is all the icy fire of crystal, the Wintry blue of the glacier, and the pale gold of Winter sunshine. Peaches in Winter are only on the table, alongside linen and silver and the powdered sugar and cream. But anyhow she's a peach—of an ice-maiden! Wonder why they never mention her in the Winter time? Summer they do. You know:

"Jack and Jill
Went up the hill,
To get a pail of water—?"

Now Jack's pretty sister doesn't "hole up," like the bear and the chipmunk, when Winter comes. She's abroad the same as Jack. Where did you think the most delicate of the Winter effects came from? NOT from Jack's heavier hand. Jack freezes the lakes over, and swells and pops the mossy ground. He weighs down the shaggy pines with their white furs of snow. He laces icicles along my red gable-roof; makes the iron of the wagon wheels creak and crackle on the moonlit snow-ruts; and freezes the brakes rigid in Bill's roadster. He does all the rough and boisterous work! But to Jill's fine hand go the fern-frosts, marvelous, magically beautiful, faery-fine, that spring overnight on the farmer's and the butcher's windows! To Jill's wizardry goes the musical ice like crystal spears, that films over the brook and turns its gurgle into tinkling bells. Jill makes the frost crystals, like diamonds for the Snow Queen's crown. Jack turns your nose red; but Jill paints your cheeks! Jack makes the truck driver beat his arms; but Jill brings pumpkin pies, Christmas presents and mistletoe. Jack's just a big blundering nipper. But Jill is the glittering, glistening, sparkling lady in white velvet and white fur and white fire, who looks in at the window, with snowflakes on her blue-black hair and cheeks like Nova Scotia apples. The kind that gleam on the Autumn trees above the Gaspereau! The beautiful, the never-forgotten Gaspereau River.

"Jack and Jill went up the hill,
To frost the farmer's windows—"

When the sugar-maple in front of my studio windows, that spread a show of smashing red-gold a week ago, suddenly, overnight, sheds it as a lady drops a cloak, then I know that Jack's sister, Jill Frost, is coming—though Jack may still be detained up North.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Your Brain and Its Varied Activities

OVER the nervous system, regulating all its movements and receiving all the sensations of the body, presides the human brain. In one way and another, the intricate machinery of this organ has to do with our thinking activities. Just how the brain functions and all that it does, nobody knows. There remains much to learn about its operations.

DR. COPELAND

This organ consists of several lesser portions. The part of the brain most familiar to the average person is the great mass which fills the vault of the skull from the forehead to the bump on the back of the head. This is called the "cerebrum."

The cerebrum is divided into two sections by a deep fissure which runs right down through the middle of the brain, from front to back. The two portions are called the "cerebral hemispheres."

The cerebrum isn't a smooth mass like a moulded form of lemon jelly. On the contrary, the surface of each hemisphere is thrown into folds and ridges, called "convolutions."

When it is sectioned for examination, the structure of the brain can be studied. It is not a solid mass, for each hemisphere is hollow in its interior. These cavities in the substance of the brain are known as "ventricles."

The sectioned tissue shows two kinds of brain material. The outer surface and parts are gray in color; the deep portions are white.

The gray matter is made up of millions of tiny nerve cells. Our so-called intellectual processes and the higher nerve impulses are associated with the gray matter. The more gray matter you have the smarter you are supposed to be. When we say of a stupid man, "he lacks gray matter," we mean that in his brain the white substance predominates. This jibe is intended as a reflection upon his intelligence.

The gray portion of the convolutions of the cerebrum is believed to be the seat of thought and mental activity. Memory, will power, judgment, decision—all the exalted mental processes of the human mind are thought to be centered here.

In a highly specialized school or university there are departments of history, of mathematics, of philosophy, of literature and of pure science. Instruction in each subject centers in its particular department. It is like this in the arrangement of the brain. There are centers for motion, for speech, for sight, for taste, for feeling and for other sensations.

To keep healthy the brain God has given you is your solemn duty. To have clear thinking, straight thinking, there must be well-nourished brain cells.

What the brain is depends on what the body is. If the physical well-being is cared for, the thinking machinery will do its best.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

On the Saxophone Decade

There's nothing that my wrath so riles
As these new, freakish winter styles!

These bateau-necks excite my groans—
And show up all my collar-bones!

And how I hate the drooping skirt,
That sweeps up all the dust and dirt!

These fit-quick bodices, I hate—
They make sixteen look forty-eight!

But ONE thing I hate worse, and that's
These silly, skin-tight Paris HATS!

I loathe the modes! I cannot bear 'em!
And yet—and yet, I KNOW I'll wear 'em!

THERE are two kinds of graceful modern dances—"UN" and "DIS!"

* * *

If all the love-letters written, these calculating days, could be collected in one pile, they would probably amount to almost enough to start the blaze in a bachelor's fireplace.

HELEN ROWLAND

When two people reach their Golden Wedding, together, you may know that they didn't rush into marriage on a bet, an impulse or a petting-party infatuation.

* * *

In the abstract, a man admires a modest, intelligent woman; but in the concrete, he always seems to prefer a bird of Paradise to a wren, and a decoration to an inspiration.

The most pathetically misguided person is the prospective bridegroom, who goes around in perspiration for a week before the wedding, under the delusion that he will be the cynosure of all eyes!

Horoscope

Wednesday, December 12

WITH certain of the powerful astral forces operating with inimical influence on this day, it may be necessary to tide over conflicting conditions by rigid resolution and persistency. Patience, industry and application may be levers to progress and sturdy (if postponed) growth. Those in the employment of others are advised to subdue an inclination to lethargy and indolence lest they incur criticism or dismissal. Personal affiliations also partake of inharmony.

Those whose birthday it is should anticipate a year of lagging and thwarted activities by aspiring to a state of determination and industry which may bridge over affairs until a more propitious rule of the stars. Patience, integrity and safeguarding the employment are enjoined. Likewise preserving personal harmony.

A child born on this day should be schooled in the virtue of patience and perseverance as well as an optimistic vision of affairs. Extravagance and self-indulgence might prove its undoing.

I must bear what is ordained with patience, being aware necessity doth front the universe with an invincible gesture.—Mrs. Browning.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

"Sipping Malted Milk"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When one is drinking malted milk with a straw, does one ever lift the glass from the table?

S. F.

WHEN you are drinking malted milk or any other kind of a drink, with or without a straw, you drink it in the way that is most convenient and most "tidy." Sometimes it is more graceful to lift the glass so that it will be nearer one; sometimes one sees that if one lifts the glass, it will be awkward. It is, you see, more a question of individual convenience than it is of manners. The point is to be careful.

Return Her Call

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

If a lady calls on you with a card of introduction from a friend of yours and you are not at home, what is the proper thing to do when you see the card?

Is it my place to call on her, send her a note, or call her on the telephone, stating I regret that I was not home when she called? Should I wait until she calls again?

S. G.

YOU should return your visitors' call in person, and if she is at home and you like her you can ask her to your house to luncheon or tea or dinner, or just to pay an informal visit. If she is out when you return her call you can write her a note and say that you are sorry to have missed her, or telephone her and say that you are sorry. A visiting card from a friend is a somewhat informal method of introduction and I do not believe that in this case you are called upon to do very much entertaining.

Engagement Gifts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am employed by a large concern. One of the girls in the building is engaged. She sent me a card announcing the engagement. Would it be proper for me to give her a gift? I couldn't possibly call on her, as I see her every day at work.

BLONDE.

THE giving of an engagement present is entirely proper, and it would be proper for you to send or give one to this young lady, if you wish. And it all depends upon your personal wish to give her a gift. Engagement presents are not very much given nowadays, most people giving only the wedding present. If you know the young lady very well and wish to be friendly, it is good form for you to give a present. If you do not wish to send a gift, it is polite to write a friendly note of best wishes and hopes for her happiness and good fortune.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

The Love Game Is Transferred to the Tennis Courts

THERE was no mistaking Philip Veritzen's pleasure at my invitation to deliver in person his costly and beautiful gifts to my sick boy. He sprang to his feet with a quickness of movement foreign to him, and his eyes beamed approval.

"That will be a privilege indeed," he said with his courtly bow. "Noel, will you ask Otto to carry these things up."

His son went down the steps with prompt obedience; but I guessed that he shared my irritated amusement and that which was reflected in Mary Harrison's eyes at the spectacle of one man sending another to summon a third from some distance away to carry a basket of fruit and some toys to a sick child's room. Both Olina and Georges, however, patently accepted his action as the only correct one, and to me the little incident was only another proof of the unbridgeable gulf of ideas between these members of a royal dynasty and our sturdy democratic young Americans.

When Noel came back he was alone, and his father's thick eyebrows almost met in the frown he gave the young man.

"What is the matter?" he barked.

"Otto is changing a tire," Noel returned. "He left it at once, but he will have to wash his hands before he comes in."

"I am so sorry to keep you waiting." My employer's tone suggested that time hung by a thread and might be severed by his chauffeur's tardiness.

"Time is my least valued possession for these few days," I assured him. "Everything seemed to stop with Junior's accident. I have done nothing else but stay with him, thought of nothing else."

"That, of course," he said, and then his eyes went again to the group of young people across the room. Mary was still the dominant figure, although Princess Olina was no longer standing a little apart from the other three. They evidently had realized their unintentional discourtesy and included her in their chatter. But the hurt, bewildered look was not yet wholly banished from her eyes.

"What do you say to some tennis?" Mary was asking. "Or," she turned to Mr. Veritzen, "do they have to go pretty soon?"

He waited for an instant before answering her, and I guessed that he was trying to choose the reply which would best suit the young princess upon whose marriage to his son his heart was so fatuously set.

"Their departure with me is not at all compulsory," he said a bit stiffly. "Otto can drive me back to the hotel and then come after them whenever they are ready. But"—turning to me—"are you sure that your son will not be disturbed by their playing?"

I knew that he wanted me to object to the game and thus further his set plan to keep Olina and Noel apart from the others. But I was only too glad for the opportunity to thwart him at any point of his ridiculous scheme.

"As the tennis court is 200 feet from the side of the farmhouse opposite that in which Junior's room is situated," I said, "and as there is a thick lilac hedge between the house and the court, I am sure that he couldn't possibly be disturbed by the game."

He took his defeat gracefully, smiled impartially at me and at Mary.

"Then I see no reason why you should not have your tennis," he told her. "Perhaps you will let an old man watch you play for a little while?

"Which of you are partners?" he asked. "Do you play by chance or are you competing for a championship among yourselves?"

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or this coupon brings a bottle for free trial:

Views of Critics Regarding Week's New Stage and Screen Attractions

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

EVERYBODY should see "The War Song," the comedy drama in which George Jessel is playing at the Pitt Theater. It hardly seems to be a play—it is so vital and real. One never thinks of that word "shokum," which is used to describe the tricks of the stage, the sure-fire heroics, the cheap claptrap with which the ordinary dramatist tries to get a hand or a laugh. This play is a transcript from life, worth many volumes about war psychology, better than a Christmas sermon, and so well acted that it hardly seems to be acting at all. Two newspaper people, the Spewacks, have made the drama out of the hopes and fears, the heartbreaks and tears of those days when the world went mad and civilization declared a moratorium.

George Jessel helped the Spewacks to make this drama, which is far ahead of his great success, "The Jazz Singer," in everything that makes drama worth while. No one but Jessel himself could have written the part he plays, because it is Jessel himself, in all his lovable and laughable personality. For this play has a peculiar value—despite its terrible seriousness, despite its mordant realism, despite its telling the ugly truth about war, it is a comedy of purest ray serene. Seldom has there been more genuine laughter heard in a theater than during the scene in the second act between Eddie Rosen, played by Jessel, and Capt. Conroy, played by Charles C. Wilson. And there are many such scenes—scenes which the audience roars and rocks with laughter, while some of the shams and brutalities of the gory orgy are being held up to the gaze of the public.

Jessel gives a beautiful and consistent portrayal of a Broadway song plugger, dragged from his happy and peaceful pursuit by the terrible tide—his mother dies, his sister is brought to shame, his sweetheart is untrue to him, through it all he keeps his spirits high and carries on. It is a masterful piece of acting—it deserves to rank with Warfield's Music Master and Jefferson's Rip for its homely and human qualities, for its sentiment that rings true from first to last.

No one would call "The War Song" a great play. It is hardly a play at all. It is a transcript from life. The people in it live and die—one is inclined to look in the morning paper for the funeral notice of the loving mother, played by Clara Langsner, who is so concerned during the first act to save her only son from the draft. One recognizes the Social Worker and the Y. M. C. A. Secretary who are depicted with a genial exaggeration worthy of Dickens, by Jean Thomas and Edwin Jerome. One remembers all the types that flourished in those days, every variety of meanness and cruelty that paraded itself as virtue, every petty vanity that strutted about as heroism. The only marvel is that it is written without any bitterness—it is satire without a sting—it explodes the bunk without any didactics. After all, laughter is the most powerful dynamite.

Yet there is more than laughter in this play. Shirley Booth enacts an emotional scene in the second act that Mrs. Fiske could never have improved upon. It is so true that you believe it. And that is the test of great acting—it is the test of great drama. When Shirley Booth, as Eddie's sister, parts from her brother and confesses her trouble, the dramatic climax of this play is reached.

Stage realism could not go much further than the pictures of life in France presented in the last act. The shell hole where the forlorn hope is cut off has the ghastly atmosphere of impending death. The last scene, in the German officers' quarters, is absolutely correct in detail, even being played by Germans. In fact, this play is so true that it hurts. It ends with a ghastly interrogation point as the armistice is declared and the Germans drink with their American prisoners, and Eddie Rosen wonders "What the h— it was all about?" It is great acting—it is a true chapter from history—and everybody ought to see "The War Song."

Aldine Picture Is "Lonesome"

The movies have made an effort to catch the theme of lonesomeness in a big city and the result is the sound photoplay, "Lonesome," which is being shown this week in the Aldine. But, though the picture is entertainment enough, the theme has proven a bit too intangible for the picture cameras. The story concerns a boy and a girl—each lonesome among the city crowds—who meet at a beach resort. They become friends and eventually learn that they occupy rooms in the same rooming house. The picture presents a panorama of crowd scenes. There are several dialogue sequences. Glenn Tryon and Barbara Kent are featured. Additional sound features include songs by Chief Caupolican, Indian tenor; Vincent Lopez, in piano selections, and a Vitaphone "Undersea Revue," offering dance and song.

Skits and Bits Academy Bill

"Night Club Girls" in the Academy, present "Follies and Scandals" as the burlesque offering. Billy Tanner leads the comedians. His work, including a skit, "Stay Away from That Door," Irving Jacobs, Harry Seyon, Billy Lewis and Ray Allen assisting in the funmaking. Evelyn Whitney is featured in "Snakin' the Blues Away." "In the Dark Bright Eyes" is rendered by Rie Allen. "Murder in the First Degree," presented by the principals, is a travesty. A burlesque on "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" also is presented. The girls of the chorus entertain with vocal and dance numbers. "Dream of the Orient" is presented by Leona Reed and her 12 dancing dolls.

Grand Offers Story by Hugo

"The Man Who Laughs," based on Victor Hugo's celebrated romance, is the current photoplay in the Grand. It is offered with sound effects. The story concerns a mutilated mountebank's lifelong devotion for a beautiful blind girl. A king made him a clown, a queen made him a peer, but, as he declaims dramatically, God first made him a man. So an anti-climax is reached as he refuses to obey the queen's order to marry a duchess and, after a thrilling flight through narrow streets and over roof tops, he eludes the royal soldiers and finds safety in the sail boat that is carrying his blind sweetheart to foreign shores. Conrad Veidt and Mary Philbin play the lead roles.

REPRESENTATIVE THESPIANS :-: APPEARING :-: IN CURRENT PROGRAMS

Gilbert Roland, in "The Woman Disputed," on Penn screen.

MUSIC PLAY PLEASES IN ALVIN

"My Maryland," operetta by Dorothy Donnelly and Sigmund Romberg, which played here for several weeks last season, returned to the Alvin last night and again its patriotic and romantic story and stirring music moved the audience to enthusiastic applause. "Your Land and My Land," the theme song of the piece, appeared to have as much rousing appeal as ever when its thrilling climax was reached in a chorus of numerous male voices, the solo part being sung by Alexander Callam.

The latter had the role of the Union Army captain in love with Barbara Frietchie, Southern lass, characterized by Ruth Urban. Both these played their parts well and sang in a way that made them favorites with the audience. The company is somewhat changed since the play last appeared here, but there are several familiar faces, including that of Alexander Clark, as Zeke, whose rapscallion portrait of an elderly Southern "gentleman" of bibulous inclination furnished the audience with much cause for laughter. The feminine comedy chiefly was taken care of by Madeline McMahon, as a hoydenish Southern girl. Among her contributions to the gayety of the evening was a sneezing song.

Other members of the company giving a good account of themselves included Beulah Berson, sweet voiced; Lucy Lawler, another pleasing vocalist; Peter Lang, as a bluff Southerner with a Mexican war record; Sophie Everett, John Wheeler, Thurlew Bergen, Rollin Grimes, Frank McGlynn, Jr., in prominent parts.

"My Maryland," which makes Barbara Frietchie a young girl instead of a woman with a "gray head," has drama as well as romance and comedy, and is the kind of a play that has a natural popular appeal.

Last night's performance was a benefit for the Zoar Home.

War Romance Is Penn Film

Love and patriotism are the two motifs of the feature film at the Penn-Loew Theater, entitled "The Woman Disputed," and giving Norma Talmadge a chance to look appealing and heart-broken. The story is laid on the borders of Austria and Russia, around the outbreak of the great war. Two friends, one an Austrian officer, the other a Russian, help a girl out of a difficult situation brought about by a suicide in her room. Shortly they both fall in love with her, but when the war breaks out she has chosen the Austrian to become her husband. The Russian takes it will ill grace, and later, when Lemberg is captured, and the girl falls into his power under martial law, forces her to accept him. She prefers death, as a movie heroine should, but the spy who is carrying information to the Austrians has been caught in the same net, and induces her to sacrifice herself on the altar of patriotism—for which she is publicly honored by a great military demonstration in the public square. It's all very picturesque and thrilling, and Norma Talmadge looks so sad and sweet that no one cares much about the probability of the plot. The musical and vaudeville features grouped about those three favorites—Elias Breeskin, Dick Leibert and Teddy Joyce—are pleasing and amusing, with colorful lighting and some conventional comedy.

NEW TALKIE GRIPS IN STANLEY

"On Trial," audible film on the Stanley screen, is a dramatic film with murder the focal point on which all action revolves. It is not a picture that has either strong sympathetic appeal or great dramatic power but neither does it provoke one to an inclination to get up and leave the theater. In fact, it fastens a rather gripping hold on one, and keeps one interested to learn how what appears to be a rather plain case of murder is going to come out, and the finish comes in a surprise that is well waiting for. Pauline Frederick and Bert Lytell are the big names in the cast, but Lois Wilson and a charming little girl, Blondell Darr, take the honors for acting. Lytell is the accused in the case and the story is told in a court room with flashbacks to the incidents related by the various witnesses. This makes for realism. It is just as if one went into any court room with spectacles through which one could see what is testified. From the vocal standpoint, it is the best talkie yet, all voices registering with great clarity, with lines spoken by players who know how to use the voice. You'll love the Darr child, a regular little trouper. On the stage nine girls dance and one sings in a gypsy camp scene. Bert Swor, in a blackface Vitaphone comedy act, news pictures and overture round out a satisfactory bill.

HARRIS FILM FEATURES CONKLIN

"Taxi 13," an amusing comedy, presented with Photophone sound effects, opened a three-day engagement in the Harris yesterday. The vaudeville was headlined by Milt Collins, monologist, who dispensed some humorous sidelights on politics. In the photoplay, Chester Conklin, the star, is first seen as a poor taxicab driver who is trying to get enough money to buy a new cab. At the end he is all dressed up in a full dress suit and a high hat, attending his daughter's wedding and ordering his fleet of 13 new cabs hither and thither. The Photophone helps the picture along, especially in the sequence in which Chester and his cab become mixed up with a speeding fire engine and ends up on an auto wrecking lot. But Chester gets mixed up with jewel thieves as well as fire engines, and it is the crook angle that has much to do with the plot. Hugh Trevor and Ethel Wales are among the players. "The Graduates," a group of youthful entertainers, presented one of the featured stage acts, comprising dance and music. Chat Coleman and Francis Hart were prominent. Raines and Avery presented a skit, "Bananas," and there was another act, "Modified Training." Short Photophone features and news pictures were shown.

Spanish Dancer Performs Tonight

La Argentina, Spanish dancer, will give one performance in the Nixon tonight. New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh are the only cities to be favored with La Argentina this season. Her program tonight contains tangos, boleros and sequidillas, and her master work, the "Fire Dance" from De Falla's Ballet, "El Amor Brujo." A dazzling array of gorgeous costumes, and castanet playing such as never before heard here is promised.

Kochanski Plays Thursday Night

Paul Kochanski, violinist, will play one of his own compositions, "Flight," which he has dedicated to Col. Charles Lindberg, at his concert in Carnegie Music Hall Thursday night. A principal work on his program is to be Brahms' Sonata in A Major.

Sheridan Gets Mountaineers

The vaudeville in the Sheridan Square yesterday had Crockett's Kentucky Mountaineers, a group of eight men from the Kentucky Mountains, as its feature. They offered characteristic songs, dances, music and humor. On the screen was Chester Conklin in "Taxi 13," a comedy concerning crooks and a "boob" taxi driver. Joe Whitehead, formerly of the musical comedy stage, offered a skit, "Ask Dad, He Knows." The bill also included Frank Cook and Jean Vernon, in a skit, "Oh! Amy;" Margie Hallock and company, in a novelty act; Large and Margot, in a comedy skit, and John Edward Mitchell in a new song school organlogue. Short film features were presented.

One Killed as Auto Plunges to Railroad

PORT ALLEGHENY, Pa., Dec. 11.—(AP.)—One man was killed and four persons injured last night when an automobile plunged over an embankment on to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks near Larabee. The machine toppled directly in the path of a freight train, which ground to a stop a few feet from the wreckage.

F. T. Fuller, 30, Salamanca, N. Y., was killed.

WIRELESS PHOTOS MADE AT SEA; HELD AS TRIUMPH

S. S. AQUITANIA, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Photographs sent by wireless from Daventry, England, were received on board the Aquitania at midnight and reproduced by the Fultograph process. The Cunard liner was 650 miles from Great Britain when the pictures were received.

Electrical messages told a machine in a cabin on the boat deck exactly what to do and just a few persons witnessed the demonstration.

At midnight the familiar voice of the operator at Daventry announced:

"We are about to transmit pictures of the regency council acting for the King during his illness. The experiment is being conducted by Wireless Pictures 1928, Ltd., in conjunction with the Daily Mail."

On shelves on each side of the cabin on the liner were two machines. One was a six valve receiving set. Opposite it and connected in parallel with the loudspeaker was a Fultograph receiver. This receiver includes a metal drum around which was placed specially prepared paper.

BUILD UP PICTURES

The Fultograph machine by means of perfect synchronization converted sound impulses into graduated lines of light and shade which were reproduced on paper, gradually spreading across and building up the pictures.

Five half-tone pictures were reproduced. The first one of Queen Mary was not a success owing to a fading of the signal strength. But the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Premier and Lord Hailsham were excellent except for dark lines due to atmospherics.

The success of the experiment was attributed to P. B. Pykett, a young Bromley, Kent, England, wireless expert.

The achievement was regarded as remarkable as the Atlantic is notorious for atmospherics and a heavy storm was raging at the time. In addition, the Aquitania has 200 motors and four generators, the later being sufficient to light a large town.

Man and Girl Found Slain in Hotel Room

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(INS.)—The bodies of a man and girl, each shot through the head, were found in a room of a fashionable North Shore hotel early today. Evidence indicated the man had killed the girl and then turned the gun on himself.

The couple was identified as F. W. Zimmerman, former assistant manager of a neighboring hotel, and Mrs. F. Williams, 22.

U. S.-Rome Diplomat New Social Lion

ROME, Dec. 11. Alexander Kirk, newly-arrived counselor to the American Embassy here, has created a stir in Rome society by leasing at a rental of 20,000 lire a year the beautiful apartment of Princess Vittoria Caetine Colonna. At the smart weekly bridge party last night at the home of Princess Jane San Faustino, formerly Miss Campbell, of New York, the young American diplomat was the center of interest.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Debutantes to Share Spotlight With School Set

AS I told you a few days ago, the debutantes are going to be compelled to relinquish a share of the spotlight during the Christmas holidays, when all our young people will be home from school. The buds have had the attention of society almost exclusively for the last couple of months or more, with the exception of the few days of the Thanksgiving vacation. On second thought, though, most of the parties at Thanksgiving time were for the debutantes, weren't they?

The longer vacation, however, gives the parents of the school girls and boys more time in which to entertain for them, and we are beginning to hear about quite a few parties. One of them is a dance to be given the second day of the new year in the Pittsburgh Golf Club by Mrs. William G. Costin, of Westminster place. Mrs. Costin will have three guests of honor, her son, William Gilmor Costin, Jr., and his young cousins, Mary Spencer Gordon, daughter of Dr. Frank B. Gordons, of Ellsworth avenue, and Edward Houston Bindley, Jr., son of the Edward Houston Bindleys, of Fifth avenue.

Another party planned for the holidays in the Golf Club is the dance which Mr. and Mrs. John G. Frazer, of Amberson avenue, are going to give on New Year's eve for their daughter, Katharine. The Frazers will have members of the older school and college set for their guests, I understand.

And still another holiday dance will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Rowe, of the Alder Court apartments, for their daughter, Margaret. This party will be held in the Twentieth Century Club and the guests will be members of the school and college group.

* * *

NEITHER a debutante party nor a school dance is the affair to be held down in Sewickley on Saturday evening. This is a reception which Mr. and Mrs. James Dickinson Rhodes are going to give in their home for their daughter, the former Elizabeth Rhodes, and her husband, George A. Harders, of New York. The Harders, who were married, you remember, last February in New York, have just recently returned from their wedding trip abroad.

* * *

SET for today down in Sewickley, too, is the annual Christmas sale of the Woman's Exchange in the Edgeworth Club. Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., is chairman this year, as I told you before, and with her committees she has arranged a most attractive array of booths filled with all sorts of articles suitable for Christmas presents.

* * *

ANNA CHILDS is having little difficulty, it seems, in selling boxes for the Federation of Girls' School Societies ball, set for December 27. This sale has been rapid, and already a great number of the boxes are gone. Mrs. William Christopher Robinson, Mrs. Theodore F. Smith, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Mrs. Harvey N. Van Voorhis, Mrs. Emil Winter, Homer D. Williams, Mrs. H. B. Rust, Mrs. Biddle Arthurs, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy, Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans, Mrs. H. Hughart Laughlin, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mrs. Thomas Mellon, Mrs. Charles D. Marshall, Mrs. A. K. Oliver, Mrs. Lewis A. Park, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, Mrs. William McKennan Reed and Mrs. George Phelps Rose are among the latest additions to the group purchasing boxes.

* * *

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Eugenie M. English, of London, England, daughter of Mrs. Marion English, and Clarence W. DeMoss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. DeMoss, of California avenue, which was solemnized December 3 in the Second Presbyterian Church, Eighth street, by the Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton. Miss Hilda G. Beher, of Vanderbilt, Pa., was maid of honor, and Harvey Fitzgerald was his cousin's best man. A supper in the DeMoss home followed the ceremony. After the holidays Mr. and Mrs. DeMoss will be at home in the North Side.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. J. E. GRABE, of Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, have made known the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Marie Grabe, to Robert Wilson Cober, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Cober, of Elm street, Wilkinsburg. No wedding date has been set.

* * *

YOUNG people who are members of various welfare and settlement organizations throughout the Pittsburgh district will be guests of the department of social work, Margaret Morrison Carnegie College, tomorrow night at a Christmas party in Recreation Hall. Miss Dora Einert, instructor in social work, is in charge.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. OWEN SINCLAIR CECIL, of Grant avenue, Bellevue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Royse Cecil, to Glenn Landis Guy, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Freeman Guy, of Bryant avenue, Bellevue.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. JOHN W. VICKERMAN, of "Roselawn," Bellevue, are spending the week at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C.

* * *

MRS. CHARLES FRIEBERTSHAUSER and her daughters, of Dawson street, Oakland, have left to spend the remainder of the the winter in St. Petersburg, Fla.

THE Social Club of Guyasuta Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a dance and card party Thursday night in Sherrod's Temple, Sheraden.

John Cowper Powys Talks on Literature

IN the Bible is to be found "a beautiful example" of the psychoanalytical. This great example is the personality of St. Paul, who undoubtedly suffered an inferiority complex and whose "thorn in the flesh" was some form of perversion which he sublimated and dominated. The Pauline element in Puritanism is its more disgusting element.

All this John Cowper Powys, celebrated English author and lecturer, told the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday afternoon in his lecture on "Psycho-analysis and Modern Literature." By way of introduction, Mr. Powell said, "All reading is for the growth of your lonely, hidden soul—your sacred ego—so that you may be inwardly, deeply happy, independent of externals. If you read for any other reason you are a fool."

Mr. Powys discussed only those books which he described as "having something essentially dangerous—weird—something in them repulsive to certain minds, but full of culture for the inner nature." Several of these the speaker referred to as "great books, fine books, really divine books."

Dostoevsky, Nietzsche (and if you don't read these authors you are really outside the pale intellectually) Louis Couperus, Henri Gide, D. H. Lawrence, Marcel Proust and Thomas Mann were a few of those most enthusiastically spoken of. Couperus he mentioned "with deep obeisance," saying "he is thrilling to read and it's crazy not to read him. Against his morbidness any optimism seems gross, plebeian and ill-bred." Proust, possessed of orgastic curiosity, was said to be the greatest of them all. Sherwood Anderson and Earnest Hemingway are mere infants of psycho-analysis. In passing Mr. Powys merely mentioned "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" and Willa Cather's "Death Comes to the Archbishop," saying these were written by second-raters. However, he admitted that second-rate works sometimes survive. The Wilder book, he said, is "a pretty, pretty book, with a style borrowed from Robert Louis Stevenson and the French writers, but it presents no problem." Oedipus is charged with psycho-analysis and the Odyssey, which shows a feminine influence is saturated with it, while the Iliad, which was written by a too-stupid man, has nothing of psycho-analysis in it. Psycho-analysis was defined as "Where sex and the unconscious are so mingled that a certain cosmic mysticism is evoked."

HIS views on current Broadway attractions were amusingly presented to Twentieth Century Club members by John Mason Brown, associate editor of the Theater Arts Monthly, yesterday morning. The American theater-going public should be patient while the drama is in its present state of transition, Mr. Brown holds. The Theater Guild was spoken of by Mr. Brown as "the untelligent theater of America." No one but Eva Le Gallienne would have had the courage to produce Chekov's "Cherry Orchard," he said. "The Front Page," "Gentlemen of the Press," Philip Barry's "Holiday," Lonsdale's "The High Road" and Milne's "The Perfect Alibi" were among the plays commented upon.

GRANT ST. BILL UP TODAY

Council today will consider an ordinance authorizing the final project in connection with the widening of Grant street from Water street to Seventh avenue.

Under previous legislation Grant street was widened to 80 feet and repaved between Second avenue and Seventh avenue. That legislation also authorized the widening of the thoroughfare between Water street and Second avenue, but physical work on the latter section was deferred.

The ordinance coming up today provides for the establishing of new grades on Grant street between Second avenue and Water street, to meet the proposed width of 80 feet to make the thoroughfare uniform. Costs of the grading work were placed by city engineers at $23,400.

Karl Dane, Actor, Sued for $75,000

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Rasmus Karl Thekelsen Gottlieb, better known as Karl Dane, actor, was made defendant in a $75,000 breach of promise suit here today by Thaes Valdemar, Russian dancer. Miss Valdemar came to Hollywood in 1923 and entered motion pictures. Last September Dane and Miss Valdemar announced that they had been married in Santa Monica, Cal., the previous day. Her complaint sets forth that Dane introduced her as his wife and she had accepted that status without a marriage ceremony, relying on his promises that they would be wed. On November 12, Miss Valdemar charges, Dane informed her that he would not marry her.

Red Fox Escapes North Side Exhibit

Squeezing through the bars of its cage, a red fox, part of the exhibit of Pennsylvania animals, in Ober Park, North Side, escaped today. The fox dashed along Ohio street to West Park. Yesterday a porcupine escaped and was recaptured.

Harry Sodders, in charge of the exhibit, staged by the North Side Chamber of Commerce, said the fox had been in captivity about a year and probably would die if not captured. He expects to find the fox in the park.

GOAL OF 1,000 NAVY PLANES IN SIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Completion of two-thirds of the Navy's 1,000-plane program and a $2,769,772 increase in aviation expenditures in the last fiscal year were disclosed in the annual report of Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Naval Aeronautics.

In 1927-28, the second year of the 5-year aviation program, $25,135,000 was expended and 156 planes added to the Navy list of "useful planes," bringing the total up to 624. The 1,000 mark is expected to be reached by 1932.

Safety in flying has had special emphasis in the year's work of the bureau. "Crash analysis" was prepared on the causes of accidents and possible means of avoiding them, the report said, and special instructions on "blind and night flying" issued.

In the total of 137,286 flying hours reported in the year's flight operations of all heavier-than-air craft with the fleets and at shore stations, a total of 253 crashes were reported, with 35 fatalities, 10 serious injuries and 35 minor injuries. The Naval Reserve aviation reported 13,747 hours of flight with 20 crashes and 2 fatalities.

"America's need for a strong navy is for security, because there does not exist at present a naval agreement guaranteeing that security," he said. "If Britain, France and Germany agree to keep peace they can maintain peace in Europe but if America joins the agreement, not only Europe, but the world is assured peace."

BUGS BAER Says

WE were happy last week because we thought the football season was all healed up.

Seems we were broadcasting before we were out of the big timer.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Picking up the sport pages we discover that guerrilla warfare is still going on around the suburbs.

Georgia Tech celebrated last Saturday by knocking the hinges off Georgia University. And Tennessee blasted the University of Florida right out of the kitchen.

Furthermore, it is revealed that football is a game that is started with a whistle and cannot be stopped by anybody but a traffic cop with two whistles.

In the East we are satisfied to stop huddling on Thanksgiving Day.

That's wrong. It started when four collegians all tried to wear the same raccoon coat.

Pop Warner saw them gaining ground down Pasadena boulevard and immediately realized that this was the formation that would make California the home office for broken bones.

Now, all college games are played in huddles. The glee clubs sing in squads like asparagus.

The junior prom is a well-dressed huddle.

There is huddling in rumble seats, park benches and in foxtrots.

More students with him. All of them can huddle together and travel on one ticket.

And it will not be long before a huddle of 50 or 60 seniors will all graduate on one diploma with the bright guy in the middle calling off the signals.

STOP BAD BREATH

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 10c, 30c, 60c. All druggists.

Padlock Violator Jailed Six Months

Upon conviction in Federal Court on a charge of selling and possessing intoxicating liquor, Samuel Greenberger, storekeeper at 2410 Webster avenue, was sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court by Judge E. P. Schoonmaker. The contempt charge was because of violations of an injunction decree of the court, after his store had been "padlocked." It was testified liquor was purchased in the store following the injunction decree on June 18. For selling and possessing liquor Greenberger was fined $300 and sentenced to three months to jail, to run concurrently with the six-month sentence.

BOBBED HAIRED WOMEN NEEDN'T HAVE GRAY HAIR

Nature Will Keep Hair Youthful Shade Free Of Gray

LIFELESS GRAY HAIR REGAINS OLD BEAUTY

Everybody knows if color glands and hair roots are healthy and active, the hair will continue indefinitely a rich, natural color entirely free of gray or streaked locks.

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: If I can stimulate digestion, liver, heart, etc., with a tonic, why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive those inactive glands so nature in her own natural way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes—surely the hair will then resume its original beautiful shades of youth regardless of user's age or previous condition of their hair.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY

The doctor's search led to endless experiments. He didn't want a dye or tint, and it, of course, must be harmless even if a person used it many years. Under the name, Lea's Hair Tonic, anyone may now purchase the tonic he finally perfected. For several years hairdressers, scattered over the country have been using it. Results are so nice and gradual men use it too, it doesn't stain the scalp, and as a test one need only apply it to some small spot a few days to watch results. Shampoo as often as desired.

Most people are first induced to try Lea's for gray hair, but it primarily was intended as a tonic to put the scalp, hair roots, pigment glands and hair in a healthy, vigorous condition. Of course, with a healthy scalp comes a change in appearance of hair and a restoration of the natural shade of brown, red, black, auburn, or blonde. There are some three thousand shades of color in human hair—no dye expert can paint one's hair as exquisitely as nature. Lea's merely stimulates nature to renewed activity, puts nature back on the job, you might say, and the first she imparts to your hair once the scalp roots and glands become healthy, is natural. What is more beautiful becoming than nature's own choice of shade to match your eyes, complexion and beauty?

If a reader desires to try Lea's Hair Tonic on guarantee of complete satisfaction they should get a bottle at drug store or pin dollar bill to this advertisement and send to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md., for generous size bottle, full directions.

Experts cannot detect the use of Lea's Hair Tonic.

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm so THRILLED I could pluck BUTtercups because the most SCREAMing thing transPIRED the other night when ARab took me to the MCTAVish SNACK, my dear, because it was POSitively perVERted! I mean PUPsy-wups had been ACting simply AWfully all the time I was DRESSing to GO, my dear—HOWling PITeously and everything, until I HONestly thought I'd go mad and BITE myself because it had my NECK out, do you know what I mean? Well, ANWways, he was simply inconSOLuble at the iDEA of my GOing so I FINally got so desp'rate I decided to phone ARab and tell him I'd simply HAVE to give OUT but, my dear, he'd LEFT when I phoned and when he roared IN, my dear, the mutt was still CATerwauling FRENziedly, whereupon I told Arab he MUST see how it WAS, and that I couldn't POSsibly go to the BRAWL with him because PUPsy-wups FELT so badly about being LEFT, whereupon ARab conceived the SCINtillating idea of putting PUPsy-wups on his HIP and, my dear, I thought I'd have hysTERics, because EV'rybody at the PARty thought we were perfectly MAD, my dear, and ONE bimbo asked Arab if that was French WHINE he had on his hip or something—can you COPE with it? But I mean I HONestly thought it was a TERribly clever way of getting out of the dilemma only I think ARab was TERribly DUMB to make such a NUT of himself just so's he could take me to the SNACK, my dear, because I REALly think he made himself an ABsolute LAUGHing stock or something with this LARGE-sized ANimal proTRUDing from his hip POCKet, my dear—I mean I ACtually DO!"

THE Radiola Super-Heterodyne—finest achievement of the radio art—is the broadcast receiver that the engineers in RCA, General Electric and Westinghouse Research Laboratories use in their own homes.

Because of its super-selectivity and super-sensitivity, the Super-Heterodyne is used wherever the best possible reception of radio programs and messages is required.

It is used on ocean steamships in that wonderful instrument, the radio compass. It is used in marine coastal stations. It is used in high-power broadcasting stations, where reception must take place directly under the transmitting aerials.

The Super-Heterodyne meets two exacting requirements of radio reception—the sharp separation of programs in congested broadcasting areas, and the clear reproduction of programs from distant stations.

Developed exclusively by RCA and its associated companies, the Radiola Super-Heterodyne is in a class by itself. It not only embodies all the world's knowledge of radio design, but it has been made an amazingly simple instrument to operate.

Giants Drop Aldridge.
Baseball's Worst Trade.

Penn's Record Intake.

FOOTBALL CARRIES OTHER SPORTS

THE sending of Pitcher Vic Aldridge back to the minors by the New York National League Club recalls what turned out to be the most one-sided trade made in the big baseball leagues in recent seasons.

Vic Aldridge

Only a year ago, the Pittsburgh club traded Aldridge to the Giants for Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitballer. At the time it looked to Fandom like a pretty even thing, but, as the pennant race progressed, developments were so greatly in favor of the Pittsburgh end of it that the swap became the joke of the campaign.

Grimes won 25 games against 14 defeats for the Buccaneers, Larry Benton being the only other flinger in the big show to hang up as many victories. Aldridge, on the other hand, was such a dismal failure with the Giants that he was able to go the distance only twice in 16 starts, and after he had lost seven games against only four wins, he was shipped to Newark in the International League for the remainder of the season.

WHEN Aldridge was recalled by the Giant management it was figured that he would be given another chance in the majors in 1929, particularly as he had won his last five games for Newark this year, but evidently McGraw either still doubts Vic's ability to win for New York or is trying to punish him for his holdout last spring.

Whatever is behind the sale of Aldridge back to Newark, 15 other major league clubs appear to be stringing along with the New York management or sharing its views, judging from the willingness of all of them to waive on the pitcher. Meanwhile, with Aldridge returning to the sticks, attention is again drawn to the lopsided nature of last winter's trade by the fact that Jim Bottomley and Freddie Lindstrom were the only men to finish ahead of Grimes in the recent voting to determine the most valuable player in the National League.

IT would be interesting to hear the comment of Aldridge himself when he learns that he is to be shipped back to Newark. Vic had counted confidently on being used in a trade that would give him another chance in the majors.

The "Hoosier Schoolmaster" never waxed extraordinarily enthusiastic over his first transfer to the International League city, though his record shows that he gave the club his best efforts. Discussing the matter during the world series in October, Aldridge said: "The wages of sin is death, and wages of a holdout is Newark."

Benny Oosterbaan

WHILE the builders of All-America football teams for 1928 are trying to select the best pair of ends from among Fesler, Phillips, Donchess, Van Sickel, Brown, Messinger, Frankain, Haycraft, Rosencweig and the rest, Fielding Yost steps out to name the man whom he considers the greatest end developed in the last 20 years. Benny Oosterbaan is given that ranking by the veteran coach, who says that no other modern end classed with the former Michigan star, despite the fact that Benny followed no set system or style. Osterbaan in that respect reminded football men of Hube Wagner, who performed in the same unorthodox fashion, but got similar brilliant results, for Pitt in the season of 1910, 1911, 1912 and 1913, playing three years under Joe Thompson and one under Joe Duff.

IT IS said of Oosterbaan that no opposing team could ever tell what he was going to do on any occasion or under any circumstances. He might go streaking behind the enemy's line, he might play a stationary position, or he might reverse and go deep behind his own line. "I told Oosterbaan to use his own judgment," said Yost. "I did not tell him how to play end. I left it all up to him and he never disappointed me.

"Oosterbaan had an added sense in playing football. You never saw him go behind the opposing line to break up a forward pass when no forward pass was attempted. He guessed the plays correctly. It was intuition. Great football players have it. Oosterbaan was tall and he was powerful. This made it possible for him to play a floating end. No matter how well the runner was protected by interference, Oosterbaan could stay up, spill the interference and get the ball carrier."

THE part that football plays in holding up the remainder of the college athletic structure is shown again in the report just issued by the University of Pennsylvania for the academic year of 1927-28. For the first time in the history of Penn, receipts from athletics totaled more than a million dollars. The exact sum taken in for 16 sports was $1,089,352.65, and of this football alone drew $936,838.

Andy Reese

Of the 16 sports, only football and basketball showed a profit. These two branches carried the burden of all the others, 14 being conducted at losses ranging from $497.96 for rifle shooting to $35,609.01 for the rowing crews.

AND those who are repeatedly calling attention to what they term the "enormous profits" of the college gridiron sport, may be interested to learn that, notwithstanding the huge intake at Penn the university athletic association suffered a loss. After expenditures of $681,827.87 which included guarantees or percentage privileges to visiting teams, had been paid, there was a balance of $407,524.78, but when provision was made for the payment of sinking fund, mortgage interest, office administration, taxes, water rent and other items, there was a net loss of over $11,000. The sports conducted at a loss were baseball, boxing, fencing, golf, gymnastics, lacrosse, rifle shooting, row-

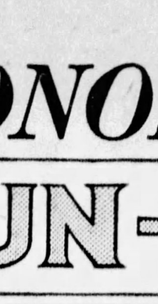
BILL ROPER HONOR GUEST

By JESS CARVER.

AS a fitting and proper climax to a splendid football season, Duquesne University will put on the feed bag tonight at 7:30 in the ballroom of the William Penn Hotel, where, with Coach Bill Roper, of Princeton, as the main speaker, the Dukes will honor their varsity football team—and one of the most worthy elevens that has represented Duquesne for some time.



John Holohan

The Alumni Association of the university is sponsoring tonight's fete, which, according to all information, is going to be a worthy one. The team and the coach are to be the honor guests—though I think a very important cog in the Duke machine is being forgotten. If any one deserves credit at Duquesne—John Holohan, the graduate manager of athletics, is the baby.

The rise of Duquesne from second-class football rating to an A-1 outfit has been almost phenomenal. Four years ago the Dukes were merely another ball club, kicked around by most any opponent, and far from top rank even in tri-state circles. Today, the locals are sharing the top rung of the ladder with Westminster, and have splendid prospects of ruling alone ere another season passes into history. (Poetic license).

HOLOHAN DESERVING

John Holohan, in the one short year he has been graduate manager (and the year is not up until June), has, along with Elmer Layden, boosted Duke stock sky high. John booked Wash-Jeff as the major attraction on the 1928 grid card and Elmer turned out a team capable of beating the Presidents. In this connection, it is interesting to note that Wash-Jeff refused to play the Dukes again next year. The position of the school was strengthened among the Conference schools and with other members of the Big Four. West Virginia being booked in football on a two-year basis. The Dukes will play in Morgantown next year and the Mountaineers will appear here in 1930.

Mainly because of the victory over Wash-Jeff, Jolly John has been experiencing trouble in lining up his card for next year. The boys are a bit leery of any team able to kayo Andy Kerr. Holohan figured on its taking two or three years to develop a card, and it appears now as though it might take even longer.

Some of the Duke alumni, so I understand, are squawking a bit because Holly hasn't booked Pitt, Tech, New York U, Army, Navy and Yale for next year. Some of 'em would even consider Pennsylvania, Cornell or Dartmouth. They fail to take into consideration that while the Dukes are big shots right here in their own territory, they are still unknown out in the wide, wide world and until you try to book a college grid card, you'll never know how wide the old world is.

It is ridiculous to expect Holohan to grab off two or three major tussles by next year—he was fortunate to get West Virginia. Either that or the Mountaineers displayed more acumen than some other district institutions by booking the Dukes. These Bluffites will be the biggest money-makers of all the smaller schools within a year if they continue in the path they are traveling at present.

AUTHORITIES SMART

The authorities at Duquesne, being fair-minded folks, already have told Holly that he will be retained for at least one more year. Just when this new contract will be tendered John F. remains to be seen. By the time they get around to drawing one up, it may read for two years instead of one. The Dukes could do a lot of dumber things.

Tonight's banquet, with Roper heading the list of prominent guests, looks like it would be a hotsy-totsy one. Besides Roper, Head Coach Elmer Layden and Assistant Coach Robert Patrick Canonsburg Reagan will speak.

Prominent among the list of invited guests will be Coach Sutherland and Athletic Director Harrison, of Pitt; Coach Andy Kerr and Graduate Manager Theurer, of Wash-Jeff; Coach Bob Waddell and Manager Overend, of Carnegie Tech; Ira Rodgers, football coach, and Athletic Director Stansbury, of West Virginia, and representatives from the schools in the Tri-State Conference.

A captain for 1929 will be elected during the course of the evening, and the Tri-State Conference championship football trophy, joint possession of the Dukes and Westminster, will be presented.

Best of all, extra heavily laden plates have been promised for the press table.

DROPKICK GONE FROM GAME —WADDELL

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

BOB WADDELL, head coach of football at Carnegie Tech, was inveigled the other night into a discussion of the whyfore of the almost total disappearance of the field goal, and especially the drop-kick, from the grand American game of football. His observations should prove interesting to the average follower of the sport.

Of course, it was generally understood to begin with that moving back the goal posts caused a decline in the field goal business, but Waddell was asked why goal kickers could not be developed with practice who could make up the extra 10 yards' carry between the goal line and the position of the goal posts at the edge of the end zone.

"Perhaps they could be," Bob said, "but few goal tries have much chance of succeeding when they are attempted from a distance of more than 30 or 35 yards out. That means that, in order to make the attempt, you have to get the ball down inside the 20 or 25-yard line—and, when you get down that far why stop at a try for a field goal? Why not be whole hog and shoot for a touchdown? At least, that is what all of us coaches seem to think."

"Why not develop some good drop-kickers and take a chance with them instead of throwing the ball away on a wild pass or punting on fourth down when everything else fails near the goal line?" Waddell was asked.

"In the first place," was his reply, "it takes a lot of time and practice to develop a good drop-kicker, and few coaches have that time to spare. Such practice does not involve merely the man who does the booting, but two full teams of players. The kicker can practice by himself for accuracy, but, in order to prove effective under fire, he must practice getting off the ball in actual scrimmage with a defending team rushing him. We have enough of that sort of practice to do on punting, and, for what little we might gain from going in seriously for drop-kicking, we would lose too much time from our other work."

"BUT wouldn't a good kicking, passing and running back be an added threat if he could drop-kick as well as, say, Brickley or Pumpelly or some of the

ROBBIE'S POSITION SAFE

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Meeting in special session as a forerunner of its annual meeting today, the National League yesterday decided that it will not be represented at a conference on the baseball draft to be held at West Baden, Ind., January 10.

The question of the draft came before the meeting in a letter from J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association, who advised that a committee to represent all the "B," "C" and "D" leagues had been appointed for the West Baden conference and that the Class AA and A leagues would have special committees from each league.

"We do not feel that we should go to any conference," said President John A. Heydler after the National League's presidents had spent an afternoon in discussion of baseball in general and the National League brand in particular.

"We will be glad to receive any communication from the conference when some proposition can be submitted to us."

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED

The major-minor advisory council submitted a long list of proposed amendments to the major-minor agreement to the recent convention of the National Association at Toronto, but all matters touching the draft were tabled for consideration at the West Baden conference. It was suggested at the minor league convention that the majors would be welcomed at the meeting.

Secretary Farrell's letter to the National League announced the names of five league presidents to represent class B, C and D, as follows: W. G. Bramham, Durham, N. C., South Atlantic Association, Piedmont and Eastern Carolina; J. H. Farrell, Auburn, N. Y., New York-Pennsylvania League; Dale D. Gear, Topeka, Kan., Western Association; J. V. Jamison, Jr., Hagerstown, Md., Blue Ridge League; J. E. Baltzer, Lincoln, Nebraska State League.

The Americanization committee of the American League reported that a boys' tournament to which the two major leagues contributed $50,000 was highly successful last summer, attracting 8,700 teams and 112,000 young players. The American Legion committee used $45,289.22 of the $50,000 contribution. The National League committee will suggest at the joint meeting of the two major lagues at Chicago Thursday that the program be continued next year. A resolution was passed congratulating the American Legion on the result of its effort.

MEETING FEBRUARY 5

The National League schedule meeting will be held at New York February 5, earlier than last year.

Among the many subjects discussed was the radio and its possible effect on baseball attendance. Opinion was divided with a sectional alignment, the West rather favoring broadcasting with the East not so enthusiastic.

A report from the Professional Baseball Players' Association, to which the league contributes, was made showing a membership of 2,500 and a fund of $21,000. This organization has for its purpose helping destitute players.

The rules were discussed at the preliminary meeting, but nothing done about them. One rule up for debate was section 5, rule 54, dealing with obstruction of a baserunner by a fielder without having the ball in his hand. This rule was the storm center of an argument between the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs last summer when the Giants claimed Andy Reese was obstructed illegally by Catcher Gabby Hartnett, until he was retired.

TO RE-ELECT HEYDLER

At today's meting, the regular annual session, President John A. Heydler will be re-elected for a term of years, as he has no opposition. The financial report is another important item on the program. Tomorrow the league officials and club presidents will move to Chicago for the joint meeting with the American League Thursday.

If outward indications were to be believed, peace was restored to the Brooklyn baseball family. Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the club, who has been reported about to retire, was at the meeting. Brooklyn was represented also by Vice President-Treasurer S. W. McKeever, who has been opposed to Robbie; Secretary Joseph A. Gilleaudeau, favorable to the manager, and Frank B. York, the club's attorney.

Gitlitz Defeats Ike M'Fowler

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 11.—Forging head on points in the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds, Murray Gitlitz, New Haven, won a 10-round split decision over Ike McFowler, Johnstown heavyweight, last night. Referee Barney McGuire's vote for Gitlitz prevailed when one judge favored McFowler and the other picked the Easterner. It was McFowler's first defeat locally. Ike carried considerable superfluous weight, was sluggish in his defensive work and lacked the power and pep for which he has become known. Gitlitz beat McFowler to the punch often. His straight left not only scored points but kept McFowler at bay.

Young Guido, Youngstown, was a winner in eight rounds over Georgie Peck, Pittsburgh. Guido had the better of the milling after four rounds of fairly even mixing. Al Walbeck, Tarentum, defeated Billy George, St. Michael, in six rounds. Walbeck was complete master. Johnny Wildner, Johnstown, won by a technical kayo over George Brown, Pittsburgh, in the third round.

ILLINI FIVE WINS

CHAMPAIGN, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Illinois opened its basketball season last night by overwhelming Bradley Tech, of Peoria, Ill., 46 to 19, before 7,000 spectators.

BOB MARTIN STOPPED

Hearst Rifle Shoot Draws Big Entry

THE large number of schools entering two, three and four teams in the rifle matches for the William Randolph Hearst trophies promises keener competition than ever before in the annual nation-wide shoot.

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commandant of the Sixth Corps Area and supervisor of the competitions, has announced that up to date 372 teams have been entered by high schools, military academies, and universities. Last year the total number of teams participating was 392. As the entry lists are open until February 15, 1929, when firing begins, it is expected that the number of teams in the 1929 shoot will exceed 400.

NEWCOMERS ENROLLED

Even the dependencies of the United States will be represented in the firing this year. The University of Porto Rico in the West Indies has entered a team and Punahou Academy in Honolulu.

WEST VIEW WIN RINGS DOWN CURTAIN

By TOM BIRKS.

THE crowning of West View football team as the 1928 independent gridiron champion of Western Pennsylvania at Latrobe Saturday rang down the curtain on the sandlot activities for the current year, that is, in a big way. McKeesport Olympics through Manager Fred Iverson dickered with McChesneytown late Sunday evening to bring the Latrobe gridders to Rainbow Gardens next Sunday, but Manager Kennedy did not want to string out the activities of the "Big Red" machine any longer, so it is hardly possible that anything else will be staged in the line of the big clubs.

Last Sunday Burns played the Arnold Independents at Community Field for the benefit of Tiffy Davis, and around $200 was netted for the Burns' backfield star.

FAILS TO IMPROVE

The condition of Davis does not seem to improve much. Latest reports state that he has a fractured vertebrae. Red Gannon volunteered his services free for the benefit game and took the occasion while up the Allegheny River to drop in and see Davis.

Boots Klinzing made quite a profitable trip to Latrobe on Saturday despite the fact that he had a injured leg. Some of the enthusiastic followers of the club made up a pot for the player scoring the first touchdown. Klinzing got in the game just before McGinnis made that much-discussed fumble. Five minutes later Boots went over with the ball and collected the pot.

Looking over the crowd that attended the game, it seemed as if all the notable sandlot players and officials in the district were on hand to see the fun. Fred Iverson was up from McKeesport with "Bull" Boyer, "Dash" Kline and a bunch of the boys from Port Vue who took in the activities.

Johnny Kokosh, the old manager of the Twenty-seventh Ward Traders, had a tough break. Kokosh had seen every game that West View has played this fall, but Johnny, with friend wife, had three flat tires going up, and arrived at Latrobe just as the final whistle went.

ZOLTAC INJURED

Secretary Brown and Mike Tansey, from East Pittsburgh, tagging along with Zoltac, had a seat on the McChesneytown bench, and, by the way, Zoltac still has to be assisted around since that injury sustained in the Olympic game.

Then Bill McGrady, from Bloomfield, representing sandlot baseball, arrived at Latrobe in time for the kickoff, rooting for West View. While the gate receipts of the game did not set the world on fire, it was a representative gathering for an independent game. West View took home $900, and seeing that there is not a "pot of gold" out West View way, that was a large sum of money. McChesneytown paid all expenses and put $700 in the bank, so the Latrobe officials were satisfied with the results.

But the game proved one thing; it is possible to conduct an elimination and bring together teams without a lot of hullabaloo. This is the first season that it was ever done, and in the future it is going to be easy.

Any team that can draw $1,700 has nothing to worry about in the future, and the West View players seemed to be contented and happy in the hotel after the season was over. The only thing that seemed to worry them was, "Were they going to make the official Western Pennsylvania independent all-star team?" That will be settled in the near future.

COUNTY GAMES PLEASE FLOOR FANS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

What looms as one of the greatest basketball races in this section of the state opened last night when the reorganized Allegheny County League pried off the lid of its season with two sensational games, Reliance Life defeating the Miele-Franchina combine in an extra-period battle at Columbus Temple, 36 to 28, while the champion Duquesne Lafayettes nosed out the Goldensons at Duquesne High School in regulation time, 36 to 35.

The results of the two inaugural battles bore out the prediction that this year's Allegheny County League is an evenly balanced race, with no club having a decided edge over any of its rivals. While the four clubs involved in the opening contests did not flash the finesse they are known to possess a few more games are likely to see them in first-class condition.

Those who picked Reliance Life to serve as a set-up for the remaining contenders in the league were handed a surprise last night when Charley Price's passers started off by taking over the Miele-Franchinas, one of the strongest clubs in the circuit.

Reliance, judging by last night's showing, is bound to finish among the leaders. Ski Twyman, Soapy Heyl, Chek Hood and Mike Carrick pleased the large crowd that packed the Columbus Temple for the game. Billy Cotz, Tom Foley and Nate Lippe, former Rauh star, played best for the losers.

No games will be played tonight in the County League, but tomorrow night the Rauhs will make their bow against Reliance Life at the Armory, while the Goldensons and Miele-Franchinas come together at the South Side Market House. The lineups:

Minnick	F	O. Klinzing
Preiffer	F	Siegal
Gubby	C	Schaub

Substitution—M. Klinzing for O. Klinzing. Field goals—Minnick 3, Preiffer 4, Benedict 3, Gubby, Seigel 4, McGuirk 2, McVicker 2, M. Klinzing 5. Foulshot—Lafayettes 10 out of 18, Goldensons 9 out of 17. Referee—Lou Macke. Time of quarters—10 minutes.

Hood	F	Schrello
Heyl	F	Cotz
Twyman	C	Foley
Seibel	G	Delvecchio
Newell	G	Tracey

Score by periods:

Mieles	5	2	6	11	1—28
Reliance	8	4	8	6	6—36

Substitutions—Mieles, Lippe for Shrello, Aiello for Delvecchio, Shrello for Aiello, Delvecchio for Cotz, Cotz for Shrello, Reliance, Carrick for Newell, Newell for Hood, Hood for Carrick. LEADERS TO MEET

One of the best games of the season is promised the followers of amateur basketball tomorrow night when the Y. M. H. A. and Kingsley House, two of the strongest quintets enrolled in the Institutional League, come together on the Kingsley House floor.

Y. M. H. A., boasting three impressive victories over Heinz House, East Liberty Y. M. C. A. and Mellon Bank, champion of the Pittsburgh Bankers' League, is eager to score its fourth successive triumph at the expense of Coach Yetter's passers, and inasmuch as both teams have been rivals for several years a great game is promised their respective followers.

Coach Yetter has developed a smooth-working floor machine this winter, one that thrives on an intricate passing attack to score its points. The East Liberty passers stand an excellent chance of stopping Coach Scher's championship contenders.

In the other contest scheduled in the Institutional League tomorrow night, East Liberty Y. M. C. A. appears at Heinz House.

The Merry Five, of Braddock will open its P. & O. League home schedule at Braddock tomorrow night when it clashes with Immaculate Heart on the Knights of Columbus floor.

LIPPE SHOULD STAR

Followers of the Miele-Franchina Club are elated over the signing of Nate Lippe, former Rauh Club star. Lippe was one of the main cogs in the Rauh machine of two years ago and he should prove a valuable addition to the County Leaguers this winter.

The Mt. Washington Catholic Men's Club will be out to score its eleventh straight victory tomorrow night when it meets the Allentown Turners. Leo Carroll, former Goldenson star, has been signed to play and coach the Hilltoppers. First-class teams desiring games at home and abroad write A. Augustine, Box 1246, Pittsburgh.

Basketball activities in the Pittsburgh & Ohio Valley League will be resumed tonight when the Welders, of Jeannette, meet the Alumni Club on the McKeesport Y. M. C. A. floor.

The Mt. Washington C. M. C. Club will be after its eleventh victory of the season when it faces the Allentown Turners tomorrow evening. C. M. C. desires games with other strong clubs, the Rauhs, Pittsburgh Tech and others of this class preferred. Address A. Augustine, P. O. Box 1246, city.

"Of course, but you'd have to use him a few times to make the enemy fear him—and you would have to sacrifice touchdown scoring opportunities to build him up. No, under existing conditions, I think the coaches as a whole are justified in their stand that the drop-kicking game isn't worth the candle, and so are discarding it."

You may have heard it before, but it is interesting to note that Carnegie Tech is the only football team to hold Georgetown scoreless in a game in the five years Lou Little has been coach of the Washington eleven. Tech won, 13-0, over the Catholics at Albany, N. Y., this year, a week after Georgetown had beaten New York University, 7-2. Georgetown has won 29 out of 35 games played under the Little regime and has averaged better than 30 points per game.

COLLEGE HUMOR, with the assistance of prominent coaches, has picked an all-America team that includes five backs. It has got around the situation by placing Misch, the Georgia Tech star, at one of the ends. Howard Harpster, of Carnegie Tech, is the quarterback. The team follows:

Lavier	End	Princeton
Pommerening	Tackle	Michigan
Vooney	Guard	Georgetown
Barrager	Center	South California
Miller	Guard	Notre Dame
Novack	Tackle	Illinois
Misch	End	Georgia Tech
Harpster	Quarterback	Carnegie Tech
Cagle	Halfback	Army
Hoffman	Fullback	Stanford

The Western Conference eligibility committee, at a meeting in Chicago Saturday, ruled Allan Holman, of Ohio State, eligible for two more years of varsity competition. Yesterday, L. W. St. John, athletic director of the Buckeyes, gave it as his opinion that the star quarterback is ineligible under the three-year rule. Better get together there, boys, and grab a break when you get one.

FORM AMATEUR HOCKEY LOOP

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Amateur ice hockey has been revived. After an absence of three years the Western Pennsylvania Amateur Hockey League was formed last night, and will get under way in the near future with a fast six-club league.

The organization took place in Duquesne Garden last night, and besides lining up the teams which will play in the loop, officers were elected for the forthcoming season. Bruce Lafferty, who is president of the Western Pennsylvania Amateur Ice Hockey Association, was elected president, while yours truly was tendered the position of secretary.

That the league will be a fast one, and a clearing house for major league material was apparent in the class of the teams which will be represented in the league. The sextet includes Oakland Y. M. C. A., Shady Side Academy, Duquesne Garden, Blaw-Knox, Carnegie Tech and De Molay.

The league will function in accordance with the Allegheny Mountain Association of the Amateur Athletic Union. Another meeting, for final arrangements, will be made in the near future.

SHORTSTOP Travis Jackson, whom the Pittsburgh club tried unsuccessfully to get in exchange for Glenn Wright, is not the only member of the Giant outfit who will not be sold or traded, on any terms, according to Manager John McGraw. Andy Reese, who finished the 1928 season at second base, is another. McGraw calls him "the most promising all-around ball player among the youngsters of the National League."

"Yes, I am going to keep Andy Cohen," the Giant manager is quoted, "but any one who plays second base for the Giants has got to play better ball than Reese showed during the time he was at that position in the closing weeks of the season. I am very well satisfied with the way Reese jumped in and made good in every spot at which he was placed.

"AND don't forget that Reese hit a consistent .300 all year," added McGraw. "It was not a case of hitting .400 one month and .200 the next, but he was always a dependable, steady man at bat.

"Reese is fast, too, and a great thrower. He played at first base and never made a miscue. He played at second base and at shortstop. Also he played all of the outfield positions at one time or another. And he has proved that he can cover third base, in addition. I never asked him to pitch or catch, but at that I believe he would attempt either. Any baseball club is just as strong as its reserve material. With a man like Reese around, the Giants will look pretty good. He fits in anywhere."

Joe Glick

At least one prominent exponent of the fistic art scoffs at the idea that blows put fighters permanently in the state known as "punch drunk." Joe Glick, who is supposed to be in line for the next match in which Sammy Mandell will defend the lightweight championship, contends that veteran battlers who are broken down mentally or physically cannot charge their condition to the effects of punishment received in the ring. According to Glick, the effects of punches during a fight do not cause boxers to lose their mental balance, as has been asserted. He says that the "dottiness" of many fighters is due, not to blows, but to distorted ways of living.

"PUNCH from the bowl is more harmful than a punch on the chin," Glick said. "A blow on the kayo spot does not make one woozy. "For a short time your thoughts are muddled. Your brain doesn't function properly. The objects before you are not clearly cut—they fail to stand out.

"That is due to a shock to the brain. It doesn't last, and I don't believe that even a succession of such blows on the chin would cause a boxer to go dotty. They might make him unconscious and keep him in that condition for a while if he were punched successively on the same spot. But if the right nerve is touched you don't get punched more than once on the chin before you are put to sleep. Later you regain your senses and you're none the worse for it. Old fighters, now mentally weak, never got that way from punches. Something else was the cause."

KOJAC EQUALS TWO NATIONAL RECORDS

FROM the Boys' Club of New York came to the Natatorium here, a husky lad, George Kojac, who holds the Olympic backstroke record, last night—and he made good his exhibition in equalling national marks in his two appearances. He equalled the 100-meter backstroke national record held by House, of Yale, in swimming that distance in 1:10 4-5, and followed it up by overcoming the 60-yard free-style record held by Johnny Weismuller, being clocked at :29 3-5. The latter performance was, by all means, the greatest, inasmuch as his exhibition really outshone Weismuller, for Johnny established his record in a 20 instead of a 30-foot pool, such as one finds in the Natatorium here.

Three Allegheny Mountain Association, Amateur Athletic Union champions were titled during the course of the evening's festival, staged under the combined forces of the Willows Swimming Club and A. A. U. Leonore Kight, of Homestead Library, is the new 100-yard senior free style champion, having won the final in 1:10 4-5; Henry Stanton, of the P. A. A. copped the 50-yard junior A. M. A. free style title, while Harry Lighton won the 150-yard senior medley laurels in the toughest race of the night. Bessie Kucera of P. A. A., was victor in the women's fancy diving. The summary:

100-yard senior A. M. A. championship for women—Won by Leona Kight, Homestead Library; Ruth Sittler, Uniontown Y. M. C. A., second; Alice Eller, Oliver, third. Time, 1:10.4.

50-yard junior A. M. A. championship for men—Won by Henry Stanton, P. A. A.; William Xengraff, Downtown Y. M. C. A., second; James Hysiop, P. A. A., third. Time, :29.4.

180-yard senior medley A. M. A. senior championship—Won by Harry Laughlin, Homestead Library; John Schmieler, Hill Top Y. M. C. A., second; George Yale, Homestead Library, third. Time, 2:19.4.

A. L. HEADS MEET TODAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—The American League convenes here today with nothing but routine business on its slate. Several trades, however, are rumored. Practically every club in the junior circuit is looking for strength to bolster up weak spots before the 1929 season gets underway.

The board of directors meets in the morning with the owners and presidents scheduled to start their meeting at 1 p. m.

More than 100 American League players were on the trading block and plenty of action was expected in the player mart, however. New York, Washington and Boston are involved in a rumored trade, which, if completed, would mean a decided shakeup in these three clubs. Ossie Bluege, Washington third baseman, was slated to move from the Senators to the Yankees. Infielder Buddy Myer of Boston would go back to the Senators and five unnamed players from New York and Washington would be shipped to Boston. The Yankees were also in the market for big Ed Morris, the Boston pitcher who won 19 and lost 15 games for the cellar champions last season.

The White Sox also were ready to barter for added strength—if it can be done without releasing Pitchers Thomas and Lyons and one or two other mainstays. At Toronto last week Cleveland indicated it would trade Pitcher Uhle and Catcher Autrey for Bib Falk and Bill Hunnefield, but Manager Lena Blackburne put his foot down on the release of these two.

Cleveland has fortified itself with several outstanding purchases from the minors since the close of the season, but Manager Billy Evans was ready to go still deeper into the pockets of the owners if he could get the players he wanted.

The junior circuit goes into its meeting with every club having signed its manager. Russell (Lena) Blackburne completed the 1929 manager roster yesterday when he signed a one-year contract to manage the White Sox.

Hawaii, will be represented by two teams.

North Dakota State College at Fargo, N. D., means business this year. Four teams have been entered by that school. New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell, N. M., will have three teams in the field.

Among the schools sending two teams, not announced heretofore, are Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; State University, of Iowa, Iowa City, Ia.; Knox College, Galesburg, Ill.; Rhode Island State College, Kingston, R. I.; and San Diego Army & Navy Academy, Pacific Beach, Cal.

Johns Hopkins University and the University of Pennsylvania are among the latest universities in the East to enter the competitions. Boston University will have a team in the firing and the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa, Ala., also has entered a team.

ADDITIONAL AWARDS

The additional awards for this year have stimulated considerable interest. These include trophies and medals for second and third place teams in sectional contests.

In addition to the handsome national trophies and medals, twelve first, twelve second, and twelve third place shields will be awarded to sectional winners. A total of 180 marksmanship medals will be awarded to individual team members. Each of the individual champions will be presented with a gold wrist watch.

Maj. Gen. Malone, whose headquarters is in Chicago, will be the judge of the scores.

BOLES SPEAKS TONIGHT

Coach L. C. Boles, of Wooster College will be the guest speaker at a meeting of former students and graduates of Wooster residing in the Greater Pittsburgh District tonight at Webster Hall.

PRINTERS HOLD BOUTS TONIGHT

A boxing show featuring professional talent, with nine vaudeville acts interspersing the program, will be staged by Typographical Union No. 7 in the Elks' Temple, downtown, this evening.

The public is invited to attend. Many women will be among the spectators.

Bobby Gunnis, Philadelphia boxing promoter, will accompany Davey Adelman here for the latter's bout with Howard Mayberry, of Donora, which will be the windup at McKeesport Thursday night, according to Sammy Hahn, manager of Adelman. Gunnis has tentatively matched Adelman with Kid Chocolate, the Cuban sensation, for the Arena in Philadelphia Christmas afternoon.

Dan Billick, Duquesne featherweight, boxes Danny Levine in an eight-round bout at Jersey City, Thursday night. Last Friday night he subbed on 24 hours' notice for Al (Rube) Goldberg, of New York, against Johnny Defey at Waltham, Mass., and won by a knockout in two rounds. It will be recalled that Daley was the National amateur champion and Olympic star. He defeated Billick in the eliminations in Boston last year.

Baby Joe Gans boxes Charley Rosen, of New York, in a 10-round bout in Los Angeles tonight.

White Sox Sign Blackburne Again

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP.)—Russell ("Lena") Blackburne, former White Sox shortstop and successor of Ray Schalk as manager, has signed a one-year contract to pilot the club in 1929.

Blackburne's signing was contradictory to the gossip that relegated him to the rank of a coach—the position he occupied before he succeeded Schalk, July 4. Rumors that another would lead the Sox next year persisted despite statements of club officials that Blackburne's appointment was permanent.

Hulswitt Is Signed As Mobile Manager

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 11—(AP.)—Rudy Hulswitt, scout of the Boston American League Club for many years has been signed as manager of the Mobile team of the Southern Association. He succeeds Milton Stock, resigned to become the pilot of the Dallas Club, of the Texas League. The announcement was made today by the local club.

SHARKEY SCORES DECISIVE WIN OVER DE KUH

BOSTON, Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Jack Sharkey, leading heavyweight contender, had suffered no loss of prestige today despite his failure to knock out Arthur De Kuh, Brooklyn trial horse, in their 10-round bout at the arena here last night. The Boston gob hit the Italian with everything except the water bottle and De Kuh was saved from a knockout in the sixth round by a "long count" such as featured the second Dempsey-Tunney battle.

De Kuh was well on the way to dreamland at the end of the fifth round, and Sharkey floored him with a right in the sixth. Sharkey stood in the center of the ring ready to put over the finishing wallop, but the referee stopped his count over the prostrate Italian to wave Jack to a neutral corner. De Kuh had many seconds to recuperate before the referee resumed his count, and the Italian managed to weather the storm.

Sharkey forced the fighting all the way and took nine rounds. In the opening stanza he was off color, apparently unable to get started after his six months' layoff.

Jack said today he believed the bout was just what he needed as a "warm-up" for his fight at Madison Square Garden, New York, January 25 against K. O. Christner, of Akron. Articles for the bout were signed in New York yesterday.

REDS ANGLING FOR WRIGHT

In discussing possible trades today, Hendricks denied that he had offered Luque or Donohue to the Giants in a deal, but said that he would be willing to give up either of these flingers for the Bucs' big infielder. A new shortstop, the Cincinnati pilot has decided, is the Reds' biggest need, and he intimated that in the event that Barney Dreyfuss and Manager Donie Bush did not care for Luque or Donohue, they might have a more youthful member of his slab staff.

Hendricks frowns on any deal with the Giants because, he says, McGraw can give up no talent of value to the Reds.

TYPICAL GEMAS KAYO

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 11.—(INS.)—Mike Sankovitch, Passaic, N. J., heavyweight, probably is the most crestfallen boxer in fistiana today. He floored George Gemas, Philadelphia veteran war horse, three times in the first round of their bout here last night and was all set to let the finishing haymaker go when Gemas brought up one from his shoestrings and knocked out Sankovitch. The latter was unconscious for two minutes.

Top-Notch Success Is Not Measured by Fortune Made

By B. C. FORBES

DON'T measure a man's success—even a businessman's success—by the fortune he rolls up. A man may become absolutely the leading figure in his line without earning as much as an ordinary executive in, say, a motor company having a liberal profit-sharing plan. The importance of the industry has a direct bearing upon the size of the fortune which can possibly be made in it.

Also, the newer industries have yielded millions in profits more readily than the older industries.

Those who have found themselves in a line of business not yielding enormous profits should not regard themselves as indifferently successful simply because men in other and larger and newer lines have made far more money.

A MOMENT'S reflection will serve to bring out the fact that nearly all America's greatest fortunes—but not all—have been made in the relatively early stages of important industries.

Commodore Vanderbilt made the bulk of his fortune by pioneering in knitting small railroads into large systems; he really adopted the principal which has since become known in industry as mass production. Railroading was then one of America's newer industries. John Jacob Astor was an exception; dealing in real estate is one of the oldest known forms of moneymaking.

The oil industry was in its infancy when John D. Rockefeller switched from handling produce to handling oil. Steel making was not a gigantic industry when Andrew Carnegie saw opportunities for doing in it something like what Rockefeller did in oil. The Huntington, the Hill, the Harrington fortunes came from acquiring and combining railroad properties on a gigantic scale—mass production, so to speak, again.

THE motor industry has made more millionaires than any other this century and promises to continue to flourish exceedingly as it is still quite youthful. The electrical industry, also young, has enabled many men in different parts of the country to become very wealthy; the total wealth of the dozen richest men in the electric and electric-power industry would, it revealed, astound the public.

Banking is among the most ancient of businesses. But the original J. P. Morgan and other bankers since, who have become enormously rich, did so not by adhering to stereotyped forms of commercial banking, but by taking full advantage of new economic conditions and becoming underwriters or distributors of gigantic amounts of capital for the huge enterprises which began to be launched toward the end of last century and this century.

Retail merchandising is as old as the hills. But the fortunes we now see being accumulated at a dazzling pace are not being accumulated by merchants who followed the old ruts. The big money is being made mostly by merchants who saw the possibilities of establishing networks of stores. A system of merchandising unknown to our forefathers.

NOW look upon the other side of the picture. Here it is, presented by a retired businessman in a letter to this column:

"It is always interesting to read of the success of great men. But is it not a fact that many of them would not be so great if they had not started when oil, electricity and automobiles started? I believe very interesting stories could be written about men who have done remarkable work in fields that were limited by the nature of the business.

"I am a retired silk manufacturer, 65 years old. I am not looking for publicity, have no axes to grind; I put three concerns on their feet and finally my own concern, which I bought out of the bankruptcy court. We made silk thread for making shoes and clothing. When a suit of clothes costs $75 it requires less than five cents worth of silk thread.

"I personally sold over $1,000,000 worth of silk thread in a year. I showed the United States government how to save $1,500,000 on one contract for silk thread during the war. They offered me a contract for $3,500,000, which I could not handle.

"The secret of my success was—and I believe it is true of all successes—that I always tried to help my customers first, knowing that my own interests would be thereby best served.

"Now, I believe it is true that if I had started in a line where my product was the major and not the minor unit I would have made many millions. I've enough as it is and am not complaining.

"The point I have in mind is that you should write some things which will encourage the young man or small businessman."

IS NOT that man a top-notch success who becomes the best in his line, be he a mechanic or banker, bricklayer or architect, salesman or corporation president, locomotive engineer or railway executive, clerk or broker, riveter or shipowner? Don't feel you are a mediocrity simply because you have not become a millionaire.

STEAM PASSING IN RAILROAD OPERATION

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

ELECTRICITY has struck another blow at the smoke evil. The replacement of steam switching locomotives with gasoline-electric or oil-electric power is now possible. Industrial switching equipment will be the first to be affected by the new development, but it is quite likely that railroad yard locomotives will come under the same influence.

Industry has been slowly replacing its chimneys with motors. Economy, rather than a desire for smoke elimination, has been the driving force in bringing about the change. The possibilities for saving money will also be responsible for replacing coal and steam with oil and electricity in railroad operation.

Pittsburgh engineers have been important factors in developing the oil-electric and gasoline-electric locomotives. A large proportion of the units are being equipped by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. The H. K. Porter Company, of Pittsburgh, the largest builder of light locomotives in the United States, is placing a complete line of the new equipment on the market.

FOR years experiments have been made with the operation of locomotives by gasoline or Diesel engines, but the difficulty of designing heavy gear shifts blocked progress until the electric drive was perfected.

The new locomotives carry their power plants with them. A gasoline or Diesel engine drives a generator. This supplies the current for the motors which actually propel the locomotive. A single throttle controls both the power unit and the driving motors.

The H. K. Porter Company yesterday demonstrated two of their latest models to engineers from large industrial organizations. The claim was made that the savings to some industrial users would be great enough in five years to pay for the gas-electric equipment twice over.

THE company makes gasoline-electric locomotives up to 60 tons in size and oil electric locomotives as heavy as 100 tons. The larger models are fully equal to the steam equipment in use on most railways.

The electrically driven locomotives can do the work of far heavier steam equipment since more even acceleration in starting reduces the possibility of slipping wheels.

In the past the H. K. Porter Company was exclusively a builder of steam locomotives, but recently it has started the policy of answering inquiries for steam equipment by attempting to sell electrical units because of the lower operating costs.

Gasoline-electric locomotives are now being built for several large companies located in cities which have passed ordinances banning the operation of steam switching engines. But in most cases the economies are so pronounced that the law is not needed to bring about the change.

THE perfection of lighter weight oil engines has opened the vast field of heavy steam railroad operation to the new types of equipment. The Canadian National Railway has just placed in operation the first unit of a 2,660 horsepower oil electric locomotive designed for heavy passenger service. The two units of the locomotives will weigh a total of 316 tons. The units can be operated as one locomotive or separately to meet varying operating conditions.

The gas-electric rail car has already proved the solution of operating problems on branch passenger lines. Both the Pittsburgh and West Virginia and the Pennsylvania railroads are using equipment of this type. The same principle is now being used to save money in handling freight.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

BILL ROPER, famous football coach of Princeton, will speak tonight over WCAE during the Duquesne University football banquet, scheduled to go on the air at 7:30 o'clock. C. A. (Tony) Wakeman will be at the microphone to describe the scenes as Pittsburghers do honor to their football heroes. Players of Carnegie Tech and the University of Pittsburgh teams will be guests.

Other speakers will be Jock Sutherland, Don Harrison, Capt. Fox, of Pitt; "Buddy" Overend, Judge Steffen, Bob Waddell and Capt. Harpster, of Tech; Henry Theurer, Andy Kerr, Capt. Aschmann, of W. & J., and Harry Stansbury, Ira Rodgers, Capt. Keefer, of West Virginia. F. W. Ries, Jr., Duquesne alumnus, will be toastmaster.

Some very novel stunts have been arranged, Mr. Wakeman informed us, and if Mr. Wakeman describes these stunts over the air tonight the way he described them to us, you may depend on a McNamee account of the proceedings. To tell you any more would spoil the party.

The band playing, the singing of college songs—the "whoopee" of it all—will come to you by radio.

George MacNabb, pianist, who received his training in Pittsburgh and has appeared here several times in concert engagements, will play tonight at 10 o'clock over WJZ.

The works of French composers will make up the hour of Slumber Music to be heard over WJZ and WRC. A selection from "Romeo and Juliet" and "Andante Religioso" are on the program.

(Copyright, 1928.)

WHAT are you going to buy for Christmas? Do you own a home of your own, for your children now, or for your children when you get married and have them, a home for your old age, A PIECE OF THIS EARTH WHICH IS YOURS?

IF NOT, the best thing to do with Christmas savings is to buy a home, or start buying one. Buy only what you are sure you can pay for. There are 10,000 good investments in this country, but no investment is as good as money invested in a home of your own.

...Today; Rain Wednesday.

On this page you will find a wonderful selection of homes; large or small — all sections of city and suburbs. Prices to suit any pocketbook and on terms as low as $500 down. Tear this page out for reference. Do the right thing this Xmas for the family. Apply your savings check to a home of your own.

Better Travel for All In Pittsburgh District

Pittsburgh Council had placed before it yesterday a report from the City Transit Commission. It holds out hope of more comfortable transportation for the great majority of residents in the Pittsburgh district.

While the number of persons traveling by private automobiles and buses has increased largely in the last few years, the entire number carried by such vehicles in the Pittsburgh district is less than 30 per cent. The other 70 per cent plus, constituting the bulk of persons riding daily between their homes and the Golden Triangle—the downtown business district—use the street cars.

It is to furnish satisfactory as well as rapid movement for this large number of our citizenry that the City Transit Commission was created.

That the density of population in the Triangle is constantly increasing may be realized by anyone who will glance at the skyline of Pittsburgh's business territory and note the many new skyscrapers erected or in process of erection.

Pittsburgh is not the only city confronted with the problem of transporting a constantly increasing number of residents between their homes and places of business. At least ten other large American cities are working toward the same end. In all of these places commissions and committees to whom the problem has been referred have reported back that the only permanent relief is in the construction of subways. In a few instances the recommendations include a combination of subway, elevated and surface car lines.

The report to Council yesterday, which is signed by George S. Davison, chairman of the City Transit Commission, says "the traffic problem and mass transportation problem can be permanently unraveled only by the provision of specialized thoroughfares. This means the subway and nothing else." Mr. Davison adds:

> The community does not hesitate to spend millions for the construction, maintenance and regulation of thoroughfares for automobiles and this commission therefore believes that it is time that at least some consideration be given to the needs of the more than 70 per cent of people who make daily use of the public transportation system.

It is gratifying to hear such an expression from a body that is earnestly endeavoring to make home travel for Pittsburghers a comfort as well as a convenience. There are many public works confronting Pittsburgh Council and the Commissioners of Allegheny County and many more are promised with the expected formation of the Metropolitan District. None, however, is of more importance—unless there should arise a problem relating to health—that will affect for good more citizens than the solution of the transportation question.

The City Transit Commission should be given every possible support to hasten the realization of its plans.

"Old Brimstone Corner" Celebrates Its Birthday

Congratulations to the Smithfield Methodist Episcopal Church, the congregation of which is engaged in a week's celebration of the one hundred and fortieth anniversary of the founding of the church in 1788.

Pittsburgh was not much of a town when the first Methodist church established here began its crusade against the devil and his works, and it is pleasant and interesting to think that this old congregation is one of the connecting links between the day of the hardy pioneer and the present. Judge Hugh Henry Brackenridge had written, in 1786, an article which claimed the town had 300 dwelling houses and "is improving with continual pace." The judge must have been a "boomer," however, for another and more credited source of information states "Pittsburgh in 1786 contained 36 log houses, one stone and one frame house, and five small stores."

And that was the kind of a town the Smithfield Methodist congregation had its beginning in two years later. When it moved to its present site in 1817 (the present building was erected in 1865), the town, of course, had developed rapidly, but the church even then was not in the center of things, the major part of the settlement lying towards the Point.

Contrast the past with the present and it will be seen how physical factors alone indicate the part this old church has taken in the religious and social life of our people. Contemplate the growth of the Methodist Episcopal denomination in this district and there will be some realization of the zeal and labor the early ministers of this congregation put into their work.

"Old Brimstone Corner" is one of the monuments of Pittsburgh's progress and those who worship there are celebrating a notable event in the history of the city.

"Santa Claus" Disappears From Our City Streets

Santa Claus, we believe, will laud the disappearance of his imitators from Pittsburgh streets. Santa Claus costumes, it is announced, are not to be worn by those who stand by imitation chimneys placed to received donations to provide Christmas cheer for the needy, homeless and friendless. The effort is a noble and worthy one which Santa Claus approves, yet we feel that he thinks the adoption of his saintly garb by worldly agents is lese majeste, even if he never has said so audibly.

At Christmas time everybody is a child and it is a little disconcerting for a child, be it aged six or sixty, to encounter a Santa Claus on every corner when he knows that there is only one. It is a little disappointing, too, to see a Santa Claus, who has everything in the world, mind you, halted in front of a shop window gazing longingly and wistful-like at an overcoat that would just about fit him. And it is absolutely chop-fallng, if you know what we mean, to read in the paper, as we once did, about Santa Claus being fired because he took too long a time for luncheon.

So we are glad that some of those who pose as Santa Claus are going to quit it. And we hope the public will give them just as much money for Santa Claus' work.

H. R. H. Kills His Totem

But Finds No Unicorn.

While waiting for definite news from home about his father, the Prince of Wales killed five lions, one eight feet long. If he belonged to a primitive tribe he would not do that, for the lion is one of his "totem" animals. He and the unicorn divide th. place of honor on his royal coat of arms.

Respect for "totems" has vanished with respect of other kinds.

The Prince will not shoot any unicorns, because there ISN'T any unicorn. His predecessors did not know that when they put the beast, with a horn growing out of its forehead, on the coat of arms to keep the lion company.

Tales That Are Told

Tiresome

"Oh, Jack!" she cried, "wait a moment; you——"

"But, Jack, dear——"

"Oh, go upstairs and get what you want, and don't keep me waiting here any longer!"

"But I haven't forgotten anything. It's you——"

"Good gracious! What next, I wonder? I've been dressed and waiting for you this half-hour!"

"Indeed!" she said, frigidly; "then why is it you've got no tie on?"

"Goodness!" he ejaculated; "why couldn't you tell me that before instead of staring at me and saying nothing?"

A Sign of the Times

"TIMES have changed," remarked the guest to his host, and he nodded toward the magnificent wireless cabinet in a corner of the room. "A few years ago nobody dreamed of those things. That's a magnificent set, by the way. Cost you a pretty penny, I bet?"

"Oh, no," returned his host. "I got that with cigaret coupons—7,209 of them."

"But you must have nearly smoked yourself to death!"

"Not at all—not at all," was the smiling rejoinder. "That cabinet was won for me by the tireless smoking of my wife, daughters, and mother-in-law."

A Case in Point

"Don't you ever feel that eventually a day will come when you will have written yourself out?" continued his persecutor. "Have you ever thought that, when that happens, you will have to find another means of earning your living?"

The author was at a loss for a minute or two.

"But, my dear lady," he said, "such an idea is fallacious. In your own case, you have been talking for 40 years and haven't talked yourself out, have you?"

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

I HEAR they are making rolling pins out of steel now. The women are getting more conveniences around the home all the time. I hear there is a guy out in Illinois that has invented a rolling pin that will shoot steel jacketed bullets whenever you pull the handle. He is going to market it under the name of "Mama's Kitchen Companion."

Anyhow, this here colored lady was having trouble in court with her husband and the judge says, "So you hit him on the head and broke the rolling pin, did you?"

"Yes, Judge," says she, "but that was all a terrible mistake."

"Do you mean to tell me that you busted him on the bean by mistake. You don't mean you was asleep, do you?"

"No Judge, but it was a mistake, 'cause I never went to hit him on the noodle. I aimed for his nose, and I knowed if I missed I would break the rolling pin. I missed Judge, and so I am mighty sorry."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Or, to be more accurate, by impure envy.

Take Mrs. Edwards, for example. Mrs. Edwards is a thoroughly respectable widow. For 53 years she has lived a life of perfect rectitude. No one ever had a chance to gossip about her. No one made passes at her. Everyone knew at a glance that she was a Good Woman, and treated her as such.

Now, you'd think with a record like that Mrs. Edwards would be sitting back, enjoying her mellow years and perfect reputation. But, instead, her righteousness doesn't seem to be doing her a mite of good. She's mad as hops most of the time. She's mad at the Younger Generation.

According to Mrs. Edward, the Younger Generation are a thoroughly Bad Bunch. They're reckless, impudent, immodest, immoral—in short, they are everything that Mrs. Edwards wasn't at their age. But instead of congratulating herself over this fact, she gets simply furious every time she thinks about them. And she thinks about them all the time.

Mrs. Edwards insists that she thinks about them because she hates their wickedness—

Mrs. Edwards never had good times like that. She never had attributes like that. She never did eager, reckless things, she never drove men wild with love. She didn't have the power in her to do these things and now it's too late. And when she sees impudent, alluring youth doing them she chokes with baffled longing, and takes it out in saying venomous things about the Younger Generation.

That kind of "righteousness" is more vicious than the loosest living. It is actually farther from the ideal of the generous, gallant Christ. As a matter of fact, people like that aren't righteous at all. They merely use righteousness as a camouflage for their own cowardice and colorlessness. They're too cautious to throw themselves into the great adventures of life and it makes them furious to see braver natures capturing the joy they did not dare to seek.

RESURRECTED SUNS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE latest science affirms that the sun is using itself up—devouring itself, so to speak, in the act of radiating heat, light, etc., to surrounding space. The average layman who has not studied the subject says, when he hears this: "Why, of course, it must be so; doesn't every fire burn itself out by using up its fuel?"

For the average layman persists in thinking of the sun as a burning body, although for a long time past science has been asserting that there is no fire and no burning in the sun. The sun is hot, yes, but it is the heat of incandescent gas that is concerned and that gas is not burning like the gas of the old-fashioned house light. The sun is a vast globe in which all the elements of matter exist in the gaseous state, at a temperature which increases from about 6,000 degrees centigrade at the surface to probably many millions at the center.

Yet, although the sun is not burning up like a heap of coal, nevertheless it is wearing itself away in keeping its light, heat and other radiant energies going. If you insist on thinking of the sun as a furnace which keeps the earth warm, you must substitute for lumps of coal the infinitely smaller particles of matter called atoms, and for the process of burning you must substitute a process of atomic destruction which releases the energy locked up in the atoms, and by virtue of which they and the matter that they constitute, exist.

* * *

For the using up of the sun means the annihilation of the atoms of which its gases are composed. When the atoms are annihilated the electricity that is the soul and body of their being is changed into something which is perhaps pure energy. You must here think of something not easy to represent to the imagination, viz.: electricity in the form of matter. The modern doctrine is that electricity, although in itself it cannot be seen or handled, and is too mysterious to be understood at all except through some of its effects, nevertheless constitutes all matter, i. e., everything that is—solid liquid, gaseous or what not. It does this by assuming two opposite states, positive electricity and negative electricity, and in this dual form combining to form atoms, which have been called the bricks with which matter is built up.

* * *

When the atom is annihilated electricity, as we have just seen, remains. It is the combination called an atom that has been annihilated, not the electricity itself. If the constitution and related laws that make the American nation were destroyed, the result would be the annihilation of the political unit, or atom, named the United States, but the people would remain with all their spiritual and intellectual powers and qualities, ready to form another union.

In like manner, according to the latest science, the electricity released by the annihilation of the atoms in the sun and the other stars is free to combine into new atoms, and this is the great romance of the regeneration of the universe which Dr. Millikan and his associates have lately been bringing before the bewildered public mind with their studies of the strange "cosmical rays" which stream out of open space, and apparently indicate a process which has no other conceivable raison d'etre than that it is the "birth throe" of new atoms born out in the cold and freedom of space by the reconstruction of matter through the reunion of positive and negative electric elements into the atomic form.

Bible Passages

"Blessed Is He"

(Psalm 32.)

BLESSED is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered.

Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile.

When I kept silence, my bones waxed old through my roaring all the day long.

For day and night thy hand was heavy upon me; my moisture is turned into the drought of summer. Selah.

I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah.

For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found: surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him.

Thou art my hiding place; thou shalt preserve me from trouble; thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance. Selah.

I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye.

Be ye not as the horse, or as the mule, which have no understanding: whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle, lest they come near unto thee.

Many sorrows shall be to the wicked: but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about.

Great Adventures

GONE are the covered wagons
Now on their last, long trek,
Leaving on time's vast desert
Only a moving speck,
Only a wind-tossed ribbon
Merging at last with the sand;
Gone are the covered wagons,
Gone with the youth of the land.

Gone are the white-rigged schooners,
Once they seemed kin to the waves,
Vanished today like the mermaids,
Resting in coral caves;
Ghosts of the white-winged vessels,
Bold as the wind, and free,
Sail through the mists, but the ships are Gone with the youth of the sea.

Yet there are great adventures
Waiting the hearts that dare
Greatly to greet and clasp them,
Bravely and far to fare.
Still are the sea-lanes luring,
Mountain-peaks beckon still,
While, over boundless airways,
Conquerors soar at will!

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 11.—Just as Josephine Baker, dusky singer of chansonettes, became a Parisian sensation, so has Paul Robeson, the colored actor and singer, triumphed in London this season. News comes to Broadway he scored the most brilliant success of any player over there.

In England, Robeson finds no racial prejudice. He is piloted to the best tables in cafes, invited to select Mayfair drawing rooms and becomes the guest of honor in the night clubs. Already America wants him back and Equity is deciding a dispute over his contract.

He was suspended for a month and there were whispers he might be barred from the American stage. Up in Harlem his own people are anxious for his return, not particularly to prove conscientious scruples but because he is the outstanding and best beloved figure of his race.

Along Lenox avenue he is king. Crowds tag his heels in the manner of a prize fight champion parading Broadway. While his fame as an actor grows, he is best known to the Black Belt as a singer. He sings instinctively, having had but a few lessons. His concerts took Europe by storm some years ago.

Robeson is the bronze of copper with the figure of an Apollo and is 31 years old. He was graduated in law at Columbia, but he seemed born for the footlights and turned his back on Blackstone early. He is married to a Spanish colored woman, also a graduate of Columbia.

His first conspicuous stage success was in O'Neill's "All God's Chillun Got Wings." Negroes say he is the only public singer correctly to sing their moving spirituals. He leaves them wet-eyed and moaning. His salary in England is reputed to be $1,200 a week.

While this is more money than he has ever made it does not top the salary list of colored entertainers. Florence Mills at the peak of her earning power shortly before she died received $1,750. And Bill Robinson, a feather footed tap dancer, draws $1,500 this season on Broadway.

* * *

Perhaps no ball player was so heckled last season as young Andy Cohen. Yet he came through with colors flying and proved the first Jewish diamond star with a distinct box office following. His amiable good humor was a remarkable and clinching asset, and he met the bleacher taunts with an expansive grin. At the Polo Grounds one day a fog-horned umpire screeched: "Cohen batting for Malone." And a bleacherite boomed: "Casey leaving the park." And Cohen doubled up with laughter.

Overheard in a theater lobby: "My dear, don't tell me you are still married, you old-fashioned thing."

* * *

A correspondent writes me the innumerable Apple Marys who peddle fruit and candy from office to office in downtown skyscrapers and who were mentioned in this space recently were brought into activity by the late Russell Sage. His daily luncheon was an apple brought to him by a woman conducting a corner fruit stand. She began to sell to others. And thus the business grew.

* * *

The venerable sellers who hawk pretzels from spiked sticks have only one profitable market, and that is around Brooklyn Bridge. No one knows why there are few sales elsewhere! Every once in awhile the peddlers journey northward with their twisted, salted and shellacked wares but eventually they come back to the bridge.

* * *

After the same fashion the old-time candy lollipop on a stick has only one market. This is among the apartment houses on upper Broadway.

* * *

From a London paper: "A fine pair of mouse horns have been sent to his brother and will be appropriately tipped. The horns, over six feet wide, were brought over as personal luggage being too big otherwise."

After reading it three times I am convinced there is something wrong. I've been having giddy spells and ringing in the ears lately, anyway.

And a correspondent from Portland, Ore., began a letter arriving today with: "Has anyone ever told you what is the matter with you?"

CALLING ON TRADE

By Herbert Kaufman

MR. HOOVER is "calling on the trade." He makes the South American trip to survey markets on which we must increasingly depend as outlets for surplus production.

Europe is a competitive manufacturer and, to a certain degree, Asia also.

But Latin-America is without industrial skill or resources. Her wealths are in plantations, mines and herds. She must import the bulk of necessities and utilities. She purchases clothes and shoes, furniture and machinery, linens and sanitary supplies, structural steel, rolling stock, automobiles and newsprint.

And Mr. Hoover has gone to strengthen the bond between our exporters and neighboring merchants.

Present day spirit has no patience with empty dignities. Even England, the last great stronghold of royalty, is keeping the Prince of Wales on the road to hold the big buyers in line.

Napoleon wouldn't have lasted a year if he had been a palace lizard.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By Leola Allard

"O YES indeed I know Miss Jones," said a wise guy, being introduced. "I was her first sweetheart."

"Indeed," said the lady, "it would be much more of a distinction to be the last."

Pretty waitresses are said to have been transplanted into choruses where they will wear more paint, less clothes, and be given an opportunity to meet and marry into foreign aristocracy. And they won't hurt it any, make no mistake about that. Some of these cute American waitresses have more upstairs than some of the oldest families, whose belfries have accumulated no end of bats.

But New York claims the prize. The woman who got a divorce because her husband, a milliner, insisted upon dressing her, making the clothes himself, and making them ugly so no one would look at her.

A member of the European aristocracy having lost his fortune gambling at Monte Carlo, gotten himself into a scrape in Paris and been unable to borrow 200 pounds from a woman relative, came to America to earn a living.

He wrote a woman member of his family to please not address him by his title because he was earning a living selling hot dogs, and in America, a titled person simply COULDN'T sell hot dogs!

But nobody stopped HIM!

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

IT IS fine to try to keep young and not think yourself into old age.

It is unwise to overtax your heart and other organs by trying to do what persons twenty years younger might do with ease.

It is not a matter of argument whether you can do this or that at your age, but a matter of "comeback."

It is a fine thing to mingle with youth now and then, but not to the exclusion of persons of your own age.

You want to keep a youthful point of view, but it should have balance.

You may be better off physically but whether you are or not, you are extremely foolish to try to find out the limits of endurance.

If you do, it is vanity that leads you to it, and it may take you to second childhood before your physical and mental condition warrant it.

The human machine has its limits of speed and endurance beyond which it is dangerous to drive it.
